Britain's envoy to Ireland killed

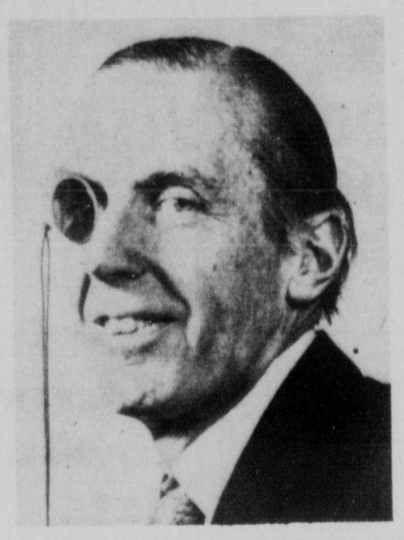

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Britain's ambassador to Ireland was killed in Dublin today when a land mine blew up his car. A woman secretary also was killed and a top British official from Northern Ireland was critically wounded.

Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs and Judith Cooke died in the blast that hit the car as it came out the gates of the ambassador's mansion on the outskirts of Dublin. Brian Cubbon, the visiting official from Belfast, and the chauffeur were critically injured.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, a monocle-wearing Oxford graduate and novelist, came to his post here from Paris less than two weeks ago. He is believed to be the first British official killed in the Irish Republic since the Irish war of independence in the early 1920s. The British Embassy in Dublin was burned four years ago by a mob enraged when British paratroopers killed 13 unarmed civilians during a demonstration in Northern Ireland.

Irish Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave held an emergency meeting with his cabinet and said his government viewed the killings "with shock and revulsion." Irish officials canceled their attendance at public functions and ordered flags lowered to half-staff on all public buildings.

"The atrocity fills all decent Irish people with a sense of shame," said Cosgrave. "The government is determined that all the resources at its disposal will be used to ensure that the perpetrators are brought to justice and face the full rigors of the law."

Christopher Ewart-Biggs

In London, a Foreign Office spokesman said, "We have all been gravely shocked and grieved at the news, but we do not have full details." The spokesman said British Prime Minister James Callaghan would make a statement in the House of Commons later today.

The Cosgrave statement said he had personally expressed "condolences and regrets" to Callaghan.

Police said it was too soon to say whether the explosion was the work of the Irish Republican Army, the outlawed underground army waging a guerrilla war of bombs and bullets — violence aimed at ending British rule in Northern Ireland and uniting it with the republic.

Officials said Miss Cooke was private secretary to Cubbon, who is responsible for implementing Britain's continuing direct rule in Northern Ireland. They had traveled here Tuesday night from Belfast on what was described as a routine familiarization trip. Cubbon is regarded as the right-hand man to Merlyn Rees, the British minister directly responsible for Northern Ireland.

First reports said the woman was the ambassador's wife, but the embassy announced that Mrs. Ewart-Biggs went to England Tuesday night on a visit,

Police identified the injured chauffeur as Brian O'Driscoll.

A police announcement said the ambassador was killed by a bomb, but Police Sgt. Pat Murray said the car went over a land mine on the road about 150 yards from the gate to the embassy residence, in the Sandyford suburb on the southern outskirts of Dublin.

A large-scale police alert was ordered as an investigation began.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, had taken up his post in the Irish capital less than two weeks ago. He had held diplomatic posts previously in the Middle East, Manila, Algiers, Brussels and Paris.

His first wife died in 1959, and he married again in 1960. He had one son and two daughters.

Police said as far as they knew Ewart-Biggs had not received any death threats.

Name change honors veterans

Unveiling

Ed Bryant, left, president of the Pettis County Veterans' Council, and Mayor Carl Franklin unveil one of the new street signs designating the northern part of North Brown as "Veterans Memorial Drive," despite the fact that the sign reads "Veterans Memorial Avenue." Bryant said the mistake, which will be corrected, was made when the veterans council submitted a resolution to the City Council that contained the wrong title.

(Democrat-Capital Photo)

Commemorating "all the men and women who have served and who are now serving in the United States armed services," Pettis County American Legion Post 16 formally unveiled the new "Veterans Memorial Drive" street sign Tuesday afternoon at Memorial Park Cemetery.

The ceremony officially changed the name of North Brown north of Howard to the cemetery. South of Howard, the street's name will remain the same.

With members of Post 16 as well as various members of the City Council looking on, Ed Bryant, president of the Pettis County Veteran's Council, conducted the short service.

Also participating in the unveiling services were Post 16 Commander Howard Hillman and Mayor Carl Franklin.

Bryant also noted that the post had placed six 3-by-5-foot American flags and poles just outside the entrance to the cemetery, with another 20 to be installed along the road on the inside. He said the flags will eventually form an "Avenue of Flags" that will be set up during burial of veterans and other special occasions. He added that groups wishing to donate flags to the cemetery may purchase them through the post.

The ceremony was ruffled only by one minor oversight. The white letters on the green street sign were perfectly painted—only they spelled out the wrong name—"Veterans Mem Av." It should be "Veterans Mem Dr."

Bryant said the mistake was not the sign-painter's. It was made when the original resolution calling for the name change was drawn up to be submitted to the City Council. He said the sign, and two others like it further south, would be corrected within the next few days.

Although it is used less frequently now, Veterans Drive was at one time considered the main entrance to the cemetery and was heavily-traveled, Bill Wood, a member of the Veterans council, noted.

"We would like for the public to start considering it (the newly-named street) as the main entrance to the cemetery," he said. "We feel that this would be a definite step in the right direction."

According to local American Legion records, 725 veterans are buried at the cemetery.

Nitrogen, argon found on Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Viking 1 robot probe of Mars has detected nitrogen and argon gases in the atmosphere of the Red Planet in sufficient abundance to make scientists more optimistic that life could flourish there, the project's directors said today.

While not providing any evidence of life, past or future, the discovery by the probe as it descended toward Tuesday's historic Mars landing suggest that Mars had a denser, more life-nurturing environment in the past.

Together with Viking's findings from orbit that the planet's surface showed what appeared to be the effects of water once having flowed in rivers, the discovery of nitrogen means that all the essential factors for life could have been present at some time, Project Scientist Dr. Gerald Soffen said at a news briefing early today.

"The 'stewpot' was there to do the kind of organic chemistry required for biogenesis (synthesis of living organisms)," said Soffen. "Whether it took place or not we don't know."

The presence of argon, an inert gas also found in the earth's atmosphere, is given off by the radioactive decay of elements in the planet's crust. The fact that Mars has a relatively large abundance now, said Dr. Michael McElroy of Harvard University, indicates the atmosphere at one time was much denser.

From the abundance of argon, it can be deduced that nitrogen must have been present early in the planet's history, he told a news conference.

"I see no reason to exclude, from everything we know, the possibility of the evolution of life," McElroy said.

The important question, he said, is whether water existed in a liquid form on the planet long enogh for the random combinations of prelife ingredients to come together and begin to evolve into self-reproducing forms.

The measurements were made by instruments aboard the Viking lander as it soared through the atmosphere en route to its touchdown, the first successful soft landing on Mars in history. The amounts reported by scientists were about 1.5 per cent argon and about 3 per cent nitrogen.

After arriving on the planet, the lander began streaming spectacular pictures 213 million miles back to earth of a rockstrewn landscape, looking much like the Arizona desert, with craters and dunes in the distance.

Readings of weather on the planet, monitoring for marsquakes and the first color picture of Viking's new home were to be received today in a burst of transmissions from the robot probe.

Viking, the first of two unmanned American spacecrafts scheduled for Mars landings this summer, blasted off on its historic mission 11 months ago.

If any tiny organisms are living in the soil, the experiments are believed capable of finding them.

Lobster men still hiding?

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor-director Orson Welles, who already has one mass panic to his credit, reacted to the landing of Viking 1 on Mars by warning mankind not to be smug about its space conquests.

"I ought to point out that the world population shouldn't be too complacent. The lobster men are still hiding," Welles said Tuesday. He did not explain.

As a young radio personality in 1938, Welles was responsible for stirring a mass panic on the East Coast with his chilling news-report-style dramatization of H.G. Wells' "War of the Worlds."

Details of city street plan explained to Chamber board

A detailed description of the recently-completed city street plan, offered by Sedalia Planning and Zoning Commission member George Berenyi, highlighted the monthly meeting Tuesday of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Berenyi explained that the primary purpose of the plan, which is designed to cover roughly the next 20 years, is to provide easier access to the downtown center from outlying city areas and to help relieve traffic congestion on Highways 65 and 50. According to a study conducted in 1972, Berenyi said, approximately 18,000 motorists daily crossed these two major local traffic thoroughfares.

Another key aspect of this plan, he explained, will be the construction of a downtown boulevard to solve the main business district access problem. This 60-foot wide arterial street would begin north of the city at Highway 65 and Ohio and then connect with Lamine north of the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks. After crossing Broadway, the boulevard would continue south on Lamine to the Katy Railroad tracks, following them on the north right-of-way to Grand. Here, it would cross the railroad tracks and tie into Clinton Road. It would then proceed along Clinton Road southwest to Highway 65 and 32nd Street.

Responding to questions from the board, Berenyi said he could not specify any cost estimates at this time. He noted, however, that before the city could "ever even think" about applying for federal funds to help finance a major street-improvement program, "the officials will have to have some sort of plan to study to determine whether to allocate any money." Also, he noted, in providing a systematic outline of proposed projects, the street plan will aid city fathers to determine where future local funds can best be spent in this area.

The 20-page street plan is one of six parts of an overall city plan being prepared by the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission at a cost of $18,033. This cost was met with $8,000 in federal funds administered through the state, $2,000 in state funds channeled through the regional planning commission, $2,000 in city funds and $6,000 from the federal Community Development Act.

On Aug. 12, the complete plan will be reviewed. A month later, during the week of Sept. 13-17, Berenyi said public information sessions will be held "every night to let the people know better what has been developed and to get their feel-

New No. 2 man in FBI appointed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard G. Held, a 35-year FBI veteran whose service includes two stints in Butte, Mont., and not much time at all in Washington, has been named the bureau's No. 2 official.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley on Tuesday reached outside his Washington headquarters staff and appointed Held as FBI associate director.

Held, 66, replaces Nicholas Callaghan, who was fired last week in the course of a Justice Department probe of financial improprieties and other misdeeds involving present and former bureau officials.

Held has been the special agent in charge of the Chicago office for the past three years. Since joining the FBI in 1941, he has served only one stint at FBI headquarters, working as a middle-level supervisor for eight years ending in 1955.

Kelley broke the bureau tradition of selecting his second-in-command from among those with long years of service at headquarters.

A Chicago native, Held worked as a special agent in FBI offices in Memphis, Cleveland and Butte until his assignment to headquarters in 1947. He later worked in supervisory positions in San Diego, Butte, Mobile, Ala. and Minneapolis.

Consumer prices .5% higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a leveling off in food costs, consumer prices jumped five-tenths of a per cent last month, driven upward by a sharp increase in the cost of gasoline and other energy products, the government said today.

The June increase follows hikes of six-tenths of a per cent in May and four-tenths of a per cent in April, closing out the second quarter with inflation rising at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6.1 per cent.

That is about what Ford administration economists have considered in the past to be the underlying inflation rate in the economy.

The increase of grocery prices slowed in June, rising only two-tenths of a per cent after jumping one per cent in May and six-tenths of a per cent in April, the Labor Department said.

However, the department said the improvement was offset by sharp increases in the costs of a broad range of energy products, including gasoline, motor oil, fuel oil, coal, natural gas and electricity.

Over all, energy prices were up 1.9 per cent in June, accounting for almost a third of the month's increase in the department's Consumer Price Index.

Workers were hurt as well by a June decline in average weekly hours on the job.

The Labor Department said the decline, amounting to six-tenths of a per cent, plus the rise in retail prices resulted in a decline of one per cent in gross weekly earnings.

Over all, consumer prices last month were 5.9 per cent more than they were during the same month a year ago.

For the month of June, the Consumer Price Index stood at 170.1. That means that the same variety of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $170.10 in June.

One of the family finally made it over

'Sir Walter' meets descendant

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Sir Walter Raleigh, if you recall your history, sent expeditions to colonize the New World, but never made it himself.

It wasn't that he didn't try.

It's just that Good Queen Bess (Elizabeth I) wanted Sir Walter close at hand, an exercise in jealousy which proved futile, as Raleigh eventually married one of the queen's courtiers anyway.

But four centuries later, one of Raleigh's descendants finally made it.

He is Lord Lothian, who was in this country in connection with the Bicentennial. When he set foot on Roanoke Island he was the first of Raleigh's lineage to actually visit the site of Raleigh's doomed "lost colony," which vanished without a trace almost 400 years ago.

Lord Lothian's visit to this tiny island just inside the sandy islands known as the Outer Banks, came 389 years after his ancestor tried and failed to establish a permanent English colony in North America.

Raleigh's second and final attempt at colonization for the Crown in 1587 ended in the stranding of over 100 men, women and children on Roanoke Island two full decades before the successful colonization attempt at Jamestown. But Raleigh's colony vanished from the island and from the pages of history without a trace.

Lord Lothian, a former British Cabinet member, found things on Roanoke Island a bit more pleasant than Raleigh might have found them.

Instead of hostile Indians, he found a welcoming delegation and the press.

Instead of battling his way through mosquito-infested pine and live oak forests, he was whisked by car across the island. After a visit to the Elizabethan Garden and to the site of a fort built by Raleigh's soldiers in 1585, the Fort Raleigh National Historic Site, he lunched on shrimp salad and avocado at an oceanside restaurant.

Instead of being stranded on the island for years without communication from Mother England, he boarded a plane supplied by the State of North Carolina, and was whisked back to Raleigh, the state capital named for his ancestor; then home to Chelsea via Washington.

But some ghosts of the past did rise to haunt him, in a figurative manner of speaking.

At the Waterside Theater, where the people of Roanoke Island stage the outdoor drama "The Lost Colony," annually, Sir Walter's descendant met Sir Walter himself, or a reasonable facsimile thereof.

The facsimile was a young actor from Montgomery, Ala., Stephen A. Carlson. Carlson plays the role of Sir Walter Raleigh in "The Lost Colony," written in 1937 by Paul Green to commemorate the memory of Sir Walter's ill-fated band of colonists.

Lord Lothian, a genial type, donned Sir Walter's (Carlson's) hat, and toyed around with the prop sword, all in the spirit of publicity.

As the two men talked they were buffeted by the same strong chilly northeast wind that may have prevented several rescue expeditions from reaching the stranded colonists.

Lord Lothian left, to return to England. Carlson returned to rehearsing his lines for the drama, which runs through August 28.

Only the wind and the mystery of the fate of the hapless men, women and children remained.

Man charged in gangland slaying

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — A 20-year-old St. Louis man was charged Tuesday with second-degree murder in the gangland-style slaying a week earlier of a man as he drove his car in Overland.

Police theorized Pierre Hawkins, 20, of St. Louis was shot in the head in order to keep him from avenging the slaying last month of his brother William.

Charged with the slaying in a warrant issued by St. Louis County Magistrate Larry L. Kendrick was Tyrell Webb, 20. Another man, Ricky Beaver, 19, of St. Louis, was charged in the slaying last Thursday.

A total of 26 market hogs and 51 steers were sold at the Tuesday night sale. The average price per pound for hogs, Heitmeyer said, was 58 cents while steers sold for an average of 46 cents per pound.

The carcass show, held annually in conjunction with the show and sale, is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday at the Pettis County Locker. Judges for the carcass show and Tuesday's on-hoof show were University of Missouri livestock specialists.

Bothwell licensed to operate radios

The Bothwell Hospital Board of Trustees announced Tuesday night it has been licensed by the Federal Communications Commission to operate a new $8,610 radio communications system.

The radio equipment, purchased from the Motorola Co., operates on two frequencies. The Hospital Emergency Administrative Radio (HEAR) frequency provides communication between the hospital and local ambulance companies. The other frequency consists of a "beeper" paging system, to permit off-duty hospital employes to be contacted in case of emergency. It also provides contact with the sheriff's and police departments in addition to all other hospitals across the state operating similar radios.

Hospital administrator Don Feeback said the two radio consoles, one located at the hospital switchboard and one in the emergency ward, were put into operation Tuesday and will help the hospital deal more efficiently with emergency situations.

All paging and other communications will now originate at the hospital instead of being handled through Radiophone of Sedalia, Inc.

In other business, the board unanimously approved the purchase of more than $3,000 in new equipment, including a $2,800 food steamer for the hospital kitchen and a $648 muscle massage unit for the physical therapy department. The board also voted to accept bids on a new air conditioner for the nursery.

Feeback told the board that two representatives of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals will inspect the hospital Aug. 3 and 4, and submit a report to the board within 60 days after their inspection.

He said a full accreditation would be valid for a period of two years, and a tentative accreditation would be for one year. The hospital was given a full accreditation in 1974.

The hospital's June financial statement showed an $86,481 profit.

Faulty furnace prompts filing of civil suit

A Smithton couple filed suit in Circuit Court Tuesday seeking $7,079 damages from Sears, Roebuck & Co., 110 West Third, alleging the company sold them a defective gas-fire furnace and refused to repair or replace it.

Robert L. and Frances L. Randall paid $579 for the furnace Sept. 11, 1973, and claim it did not work and posed a fire hazard. The suit alleges that the company attempted to fix the unit once, but problems persisted and the company refused to make further repairs or replace the furnace.

Claiming they were living "in constant fear of fire and explosion," the Randall's are seeking $6,000 in punitive damages and $1,079 in actual damages including installation and removal costs.

Youngster is hurt when struck by car

A two-year-old Sedalia boy suffered minor injuries when he was struck by a car about 6:25 p.m. Tuesday in front of his home on East 16th Street.

Dale R. Pottorff, 814 East 16th, was treated and released at Bothwell Hospital for minor injuries following the accident.

Police reported that he apparently ran in front of a car driven east on 16th by Thomas D. Hall, 59, 1321 West Broadway. Hall told officers that he did not see the boy until he was in front of the car. The vehicle skidded about 22 feet before stopping.

ings about it all because the plan really needs the input of citizens in order to be effective and before support can be generated."

Such public awareness and subsequent support is "absolutely necessary in order for the plan to be successfully implemented," he continued. "I cannot emphasize that enough. Unless we have the citizens behind us, this plan is just a bunch of words on paper. That is why we feel it is so important to devote an entire week to letting the citizens know what has been developed."

Planning and Zoning Commission chairman Ray Hendricks attended the board meeting, but did not participate in the discussion.

In other business, the board accepted the resignations of board members Larry Melton and Danny McCue. Melton, formerly executive manager of the Chamber, is moving to Union, Mo., where he will be an instructor in history and political sciences at East Central Community College. McCue, a pharmacist, has not been able to attend board meetings because of professional conflicts. Named to complete the terms of these two men, who both were elected to three-year terms earlier this year, were Ivan Stewart, plant manager of the Duke Manufacturing Co., and Jim Lewis, owner and manager of the Pettis County Abstract Co.

It was also announced that several State Fair Community College students are assisting the Chamber in producing a syncronized slide and dialogue presentation designed to acquaint prospective industries with the city.

Housing bill sent to Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4.7-billion measure authorizing $850 million for new public housing has been sent to the White House. Much of the money in the bill would provide housing assistance to the elderly.

The two-year authorization, including $2.5 billion to fund housing aid for the elderly and the handicapped, passed by a voice vote.

The bill provides $576 million for existing public housing projects, and requires the Department of Housing and Urban Development to use at least $100 million to finance new or substantially rehabilitated projects.

The Ford administration had objected to language in an erlier version of the bill that would have required HUD to build far more new public housing units. Administration supporters argued that in many areas there were sufficient existing units to cover public housing needs.

Wheeler wants part of campaign debate

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Mayor Charles B. Wheeler Jr., of Kansas City said today he would very much like to get in on the debates that two of his rivals for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate have been talking so much about.

"I'm very much disgusted with this ping pong game that's been going on between Litton and Symington," Wheeler said in an interview. "It's my observation that they have been paying a lot of lip service to debate but not showing up."

Wheeler was referring to Rep. Jerry Litton and Rep. James W. Symington, who have been charging each other with dodging a debate encounter.

"I want to take them on on the firemen's strike issue that I think is so important," Wheeler said. "I'll accept any kind of a challenge to debate that Litton and Symington desire."

Wheeler was asked if he is conducting only a token campaign and is in the race only to cut into Litton's vote in the Kansas City area.

"I deny those charges." Wheeler said.

"I'm headed from here to St. Louis. Yesterday I was in Macon and Kirksville. That doesn't sound like a man who is running a slow campaign. And I'm not a 'stop man' for anybody. All three of my opponents have weak platforms, and I plan to beat them on the issues."

The other major candidate seeking the Democratic senatorial nomination is Warren E. Hearnes, the former governor.

Wheeler was at a breakfast in St. Joseph to advise civic leaders on how to set up a sister-city program with some foreign city. Because it was founded by a Frenchman, St. Joseph is hoping to establish a special relationship with some city in France.

When an interviewer noted that polls have shown Wheeler trailing far behind, the mayor said:

"Polls are a bunch of foolishness. In this campaign there has been one silly effort by the Kansas City Star. None of the other candidates have put out polls. St. Louis polls haven't come out. There is just that one poll put together hastily by the Kansas City Star, which hasn't always been supportive of my efforts."

Watergate reform bill approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted today to prohibit high-level presidential or vice-presidential campaign officials from becoming attorney general or deputy attorney general.

The prohibition was adopted by voice vote as an amendment to a bill creating a special prosecutor to investigate such scandals as Watergate, which brought the resignation of former President Richard M. Nixon.

The Watergate reform bill has widespread bipartisan support, and final action was expected later in the day or on Thursday.

Offered by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., the ban specifically bars presidential or vice-presidential campaign managers, finance committee chairmen, party national chairmen "and other high officials" from being named as attorney general or his deputy.

Bentsen said naming campaign officials to such posts "contributes to a growing perception of the Department of Justice as a political instrument."

He said it is "time to assure the American people" that the department is not such an instrument.

Burglaries under investigation here

Three burglaries were reported to police early Wednesday morning.

Thieves broke into the Broadway Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Kentucky, sometime between 2 and 3:40 a.m. Wednesday. Although nothing was taken, about $75 in damage was done to a vending machine and a bookcase.

A candy vending machine was burglarized in the Boys Club at the Sedalia Community Center, Fourth and Washington, between 6 and 8 a.m. Wednesday. The building was entered through a south window and then the door to the club was pried open. Police reported that an attempt was made to open a soda vending machine but entry was not gained. The thieves also sprayed paint on the center's front door when they left. An undetermined amount of change and candy was taken from the machine.

An inventory is scheduled to be taken at the B and E Market, 17th and Kentucky, following a break-in that was discovered about 2:46 a.m. Wednesday. Police reported that a metal panel was pried up on an east door and then the door was unlocked to gain entry. It was not known if anything was taken.

Man found guilty of assault charge

Gary Eugene Hix, 17, Satellite Motel, 3200 East 12th, charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm in connection with the alleged beating of a Joplin man Jan. 29, was found guilty in Circuit Court Tuesday of a lesser offense of common assault.

Judge Frank Meyer, who heard the case without a jury, reduced the charge and fined Hix $100 plus court costs.

Hix allegedly beat Kenneth L. Wilcox with a wooden club Jan. 29, at the Satellite Motel.

A Tulsa, Okla., man charged with stealing property valued at more than $50 was granted a change of venue to Morgan County in Circuit Court Tuesday.

Johnnie Wayne Smithee, 29, was arrested in Warsaw April 3, 1975, on a Pettis County warrant. He allegedly took 65 used truck tires from Jim's Tire Service, South Highway 65, on April 1, 1975.

Smithee's petition stated that he could not get a fair and impartial trial here because of "unusual and undue" publicity of his case in the news media.

He is free on $3,500 bond.

Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer Tuesday disqualified himself from hearing two cases at the requests of the plaintiffs, who claimed he was prejudiced.

The Missouri Supreme Court will appoint a special judge to hear the cases of James L. Taylor, 27, Holden, and Sharon K. Sanders, Kansas City.

Taylor is charged with stealing property valued at more than $50 in connection with the theft of 140 railroad ties from the MKT railroad tracks near Beaman Feb. 24.

He remains in Pettis County jail in lieu of $3,500 bond.

Sanders faces a felony charge of issuing a no funds check allegedly issued Sept. 14, 1975, on Missouri State Bank to Davis Auto Supply, 2610 West Broadway.

She is free on $1,000 bond.

FBI laboratory fights crime with microscopes, not guns

Lab search

A technician carrying out an examination of a nightgown at the FBI laboratory in Washington is collecting scrapings for microscope analysis. Thousands of items involved in criminal investigations all over the country are sent to the laboratory, which conducts nearly 500,000 examinations annually. (AP)

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the laboratory's fluorescent glare, a technician examined ugly brown splotches on a tiny, yellow, quilted robe. A baby girl had been wearing the robe at the time she was raped. The splotches were dried bloodstains.

It was the technician's job to determine whether the bloodstains on the robe matched those on a pair of jeans and a football jersey taken from the key suspect in the case.

The results of a variety of chemical tests would be crucial for police gathering evidence against the man. The chemical analysis could either link him inextricably to the crime or exonerate him.

The robe, the jeans and the football jersey are among thousands of items sent each year to the FBI laboratory in Washington, which conducts nearly 500,000 examinations annually.

The FBI handles more criminal case laboratory work than any of the 200 state and local police labs in the country. Most small town police departments rely on the FBI for their lab work.

Jay Cochran Jr., an assistant FBI director who heads the lab, says some sophisticated techniques are available to police departments only at the FBI.

The FBI lab was started 42 years ago as "a one-man, one-microscope concept," says cochran, who is 48 and is trained as a mechanical engineer. There are now 512 employes and equipment worth $7.8 million.

Some cases end in remarkable success stories, but others end in failure. Sometimes, lab officials feel they're only one short step ahead of the criminals in scientific knowledge.

For example, Maurice Stack, head of the physics and chemistry section, noted that criminals often file off the identifying numbers of stolen cars and weapons. The lab uses a chemical process which can restore the numbers, but investigators are finding that some theft rings file off numbers, then restore them chemically and file them off again.

A major part of the FBI lab operation involves ballistics tests to determine whether bullets taken from victims were fired from a particular gun. This involves microscopic examination of the striations on the bullet as well as other tests to determine whether traces of barium and antimony, elements commonly found in ammunition, are present in material swabbed from a suspect's hand.

Stack, a 43-year-old specialist in forensic sciences, said the FBI had a collection of about 3,000 guns worth more than $1 million.

In a few cases, police investigators themselves make it impossible for the lab's analysts to come up with meaningful findings.

Some send in the clothing of a rape victim and that of the suspect in the same package so that there's no way to tell whether hair and fiber found on the suspect's clothing got there during the crime.

One policeman, firing a gun to obtain test bullets for ballistics comparison, sent to the FBI lab the trunk of a tree with the eight test bullets still embedded in it.

"They were so messed up we couldn't tell anything about them," Stack said.

No more for pair; 32 enough

BRASILIA (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Raimundo Carnauba have stopped having babies, barring an unforeseen 33rd. Now the Brazilian superfamily is concentrating on grandchildren.

Carnauba and his sturdy wife, Maria Madalena, have had more babies than any other living couple in the world, according to the "Guinness Book of Records." Twenty-six of the 32 Carnauba offspring are alive, and most have reached the age of parenthood.

The balding, rotund carpenter says his grandchildren have grown in number from four dozen late in 1973 to an estimated six dozen today.

Make that yesterday.

"It seems like every day there is a new one," Carnauba said. "I don't know for sure, but I think there are 72."

He does some quick calculating: "It was 72. Then two died. But now two more were born.

"Yes, 72 grandchildren."

The most prolific of the second generation so far is Juvencio, 36, with eight children of his own.

Carnauba, 66, said his oldest child is 39 and his youngest, a girl, named Maria Aparecida, is 8. Seven of the 26 children are girls. Six are twins.

The couple was married when she was 13 and he was 23, Carnauba said.

Mrs. Carnauba, now 55, stayed back in the narrow kitchen while her husband sat and talked at a shaky plywood table in the front room.

Coaxed to come out, the wife smiled shyly when asked if she didn't miss having babies.

"I've got my grandchildren," she said.

Carnauba took that as a cue to say how fond he is of his grandchildren, especially a baby girl living with the grandparents.

"If the father wants to take her away, he'll have to fight me first," he said with a laugh and a friendly thump on his listener's shoulder. "He'll have to hit me several times."

The Carnauba home is a shabby wooden house with a tin roof, on a dirt street in one of several low-income "satellite cities" around Brazil's modernistic capital. Counting the kitchen but not the adjoining carpentry shop where Carnauba works, the house has six rooms.

"It's pretty tight," Carnauba said.

The family budget also is tight, he said — taking the opportunity to solicit $5 to buy a fresh container of stove gas.

Carnauba said he proposed recently that his grown-up sons each chip in $5 a month to help with their parents' household expenses, but none was willing.

Nevertheless, he predicted that having ignored birth control and fathering all those babies will pay off some day.

"There has to be one of those who is going to support me," he said. "No, I don't like the pill."

Israelis seek oil options

TEL AVIV (AP) — Scientists are trying to increase Israel's energy supply with sunshine, wave machines, windmills and scum from the Dead Sea.

Engineers concede that it might take decades to learn how to harness even a fraction of the sun's power. Meanwhile, the sun is already being put to use on rooftops throughout the country.

More than 150,000 households in Israel — compared to a few hundred American homes — use sun heating to produce cheap hot water.

Israelis have been using the technique for more than 20 years. More and more families are installing glass "reflector plates" and tanks on their roofs.

"Once you've paid for the heater, which costs about $400, the hot water is almost free on a sunny day," says one housewife. "On a rainy day we can always switch to the electricity."

A Tel Aviv company, Miromit, which calls itself the world's most experienced maker of sun-powered equipment, says it is exporting thousands of solar collector plates to the United States, Greece, Turkey and even sun-starved Britain, where on a cloudy day, infrared rays can provide some heating energy.

Israeli scientists complain that the government has no full program to promote energy research or solar experiments.

Israel produces electricity from conventional power stations that burn oil, all of it imported from Iran since the country has no oil of its own. Present plans call for Israel to "go nuclear" in the 1980s, with atomic power stations.

Professors at the Israel Institute of Technology (Technion) are convinced that some of the nuclear investment money could be saved by solar energy. Even with present technology, they say, the sun can be used for more than heating bath water.

Prof. Baruch Givroni builds "radiation traps" that turn an entire roof into a heat collector. He says that a low-rise building designed around the radiation trap can do without a furance even in cold climates.

Givroni's heat trap is a triangular shed of glass, aluminum foil and black foam that catches the sun's rays. The accumulated hot air is pushed by a fan into a gravel storage bed and circulated through the building.

On summer nights, he says, it collects condensation and stores cold air, to cool the building by day without air conditioning.

The Givroni heater hasn't been used so far in Israel except for experiments.

Anthony Peranio, head of the hydrotechnical section at Technion, wants to harness wind and waves as well as the sun.

He plans a generator more than a mile long — a flap suspended in the Mediterranean Sea — to collect the power from the incoming waves and transmit it ashore.

"This could be combined with a battery of windmills — there is a helluva lot of wind energy — and a solar 'farm' of collector plates on shore," says Peranio. He also advocates methane burners that run on manure, claiming that "70 pounds of manure provides enough energy for 20 families to cook for a week."

At Israel's Weizmann Institute, scientists are working on a different energy project — algae (scum) that grow in brackish ponds along the Dead Sea could "someday provide a cheap source of glycerol, a combustible alcohol capable of heating homes and powering engines," says an Institute spokesman.

"With all the fuss over the current energy crisis, wishful thinkers have probably been hoping that science would produce petroleum out of thin air," said the spokesman.

"This is still a fantasy," but the Dead Sea algae "may be a first halting step in this direction."

Probably the first diving bell used in the Americas was a 680-pound bronze bell cast in Havana. National Geographic says the bell was used off the coast of Florida in 1626 to search for treasure-laden Spanish ships that had sunk.

'Fact-detector' sets historical record straight

NEW YORK (AP) — Uncle Sam was a food inspector during the War of 1812. George Washington had to borrow money to attend his first inauguration. The Wright Brothers did not fly the first airplane.

These facts may not change the course of history, but they are the stuff of life for Joseph Nathan Kane — his hobby and his profession. The 77-year-old native New Yorker has devoted the past 53 years to digging out unusual facts, discovering who did things first and setting the record straight on any historical inaccuracy he comes across.

Although he collects historical data, much of which he compiles into books, Kane does not consider himself a historian.

"All I am is a factualist — a fact-detector, as I've been called. I lay no claim to anything else," he said in an interview in his Manhattan apartment. "If it's a first, that's fine. But I'm not promoting any cause."

Kane's first book, "Famous First Facts and Records," an update of which has just been published, deals with strictly American "firsts" from the first abdominal operation to the first woman mayor. In it, he authoritatively debunks old myths and gives credit to pioneers and inventors who have long gone unnoticed.

"Facts About the Presidents," also written by Kane and also recently reissued, provides details on the lives of every American president since George Washington.

Kane's apartment is filled with mementos, including old radio microphones, first editions, what he claims is the first fountain pen and letters about firsts and purported firsts all over the country. His living room contains stacked boxes of clippings that date as far back as 1919 and thousands of facts about past, present and future projects on neatly filed index cards. A sign on one wall reads "The Man with a New Idea is a Crackpot Until it Succeeds."

In 1923, Kane was given a contract to do a book on the story of American inventions. In the course of his research he found endless historical inaccuracies and determined to set the record straight. It took ten years to complete "First Facts."

The soft-spoken, silver-haired man went on to explain that he spent all his free time in libraries and museums. He also conducted interviews with living "firsts" until the job was done.

One big problem, he said, was inconsistency — even in official records. Kane continues to find errors in statements that have always been accepted as true and that have been perpetuated as such by history books and other records.

Right now he is working on a book on the United States — not just first facts, but all kinds of facts. He often stays at his typewriter until 3 or 4 a.m.

"When you get old," explained Kane, a widower, "you have a choice — go into an oldage home and go crazy, or work. I work."

In addition to writing and updating his books, Kane at one time ran the Kane Feature News Service. He hosted his own radio quiz show, "Famous Firsts," in 1946 and wrote questions for such shows as "The $64,000 Question," "Break the Bank," "What's the Word" and "That's a Fact." He also worked for a time as a publicity agent and free lance reporter.

The parasol ants live in very warm regions and raise tiny mushrooms. The worker ants in the community bring in bits of leaf for the mushrooms to grow on. The pieces of leaf look like tiny parasols as the ants carry them along.

Puffer protest

Charles Pomplin, 55, who says he has been smoking at school board meetings in Point Arena, Calif., for 20 years, is quitting the high school board to protest a ban on smoking in the clean, new meeting room. "Smokers," says Pomplin, "have just as much right as non-smokers."

Celebrities rally to defense of ex-porno film star Harry Reems

By IRA BERKOW

The naked concern of Harry Reems, one-time porno film star, is that he will become a jailbird. He is appealing a recent conviction that would land him in prison for a maximum of five years.

Harry Reems, whose real name is Herbert Streicher, was the male lead in a majority of top box office hard-core porno films, including "Deep Throat" and "The Devil in Miss Jones."

On April 29, 1976, in the federal courtroom in Memphis, Tenn. Herbert Streicher was convicted of "national conspiracy to transport interstate obscene materials" in relation to "Deep Throat." Even though the prosecution agreed that Streicher had nothing to do with the marketing and distribution rights of the film. Even though he was paid $100 for one day's work only in "Deep Throat," which has grossed nearly $30 million since it was made in 1972. Even though he was prosecuted on a retroactive ruling — the 1973 Supreme Court's "Miller ruling," which left the decision of acceptability of such materials in the hands of local communities.

Streicher is also the first actor or artist of any kind to be prosecuted on a federal level for his work. In October, he again goes on trial for the same charges for his role in "The Devil in Miss Jones."

A good portion of the entertainment community was so shaken that it has come strongly to Streicher's defense, and the Harry Reems Legal Defense Fund, handled by the theatrical law firm of Weissberger and Harris in New York City, has been the catalyst for benefit parties in New York and Hollywood attended by such stars as Jack Nicholson, Ben Gazzarra, Colleen Dewhurst, Anthony Perkins and Steve McQueen.

At the New York party Mike Nichols, a host, said, "To help Harry Reems is to help ourselves. It could happen to any of us. My film, 'Carnal Knowledge,' was banned in Georgia, until a Supreme Court ruling overturned it. But once the courts and censors begin to decide what ideas we artists can and cannot experiment with, then we are all endangered."

Streicher, following Nichols, stood up at the party and said, "I know this is not a tribute or salute to me or to 'Deep Throat.' I commend you all for your courage. I realize I am just a pawn or scapegoat in an issue well above my head, but I think it touches every human being and his civil rights and freedom of expression in this country."

Streicher is a low-keyed, articulate man of 28. He is no strapping stud by any stretch of imagination. He is about 5-9, 155, neat brown hair, bushy eye brows, fluffy mustache, and brown eyes that are anything but lewd.

He wore at the recent fund-raising party in New York a conventional tan suit with vest. It was a suit he bought for his trial which asted 10 weeks.

It is just such a "monkey suit" which has prevented him from donning his gorilla costume.

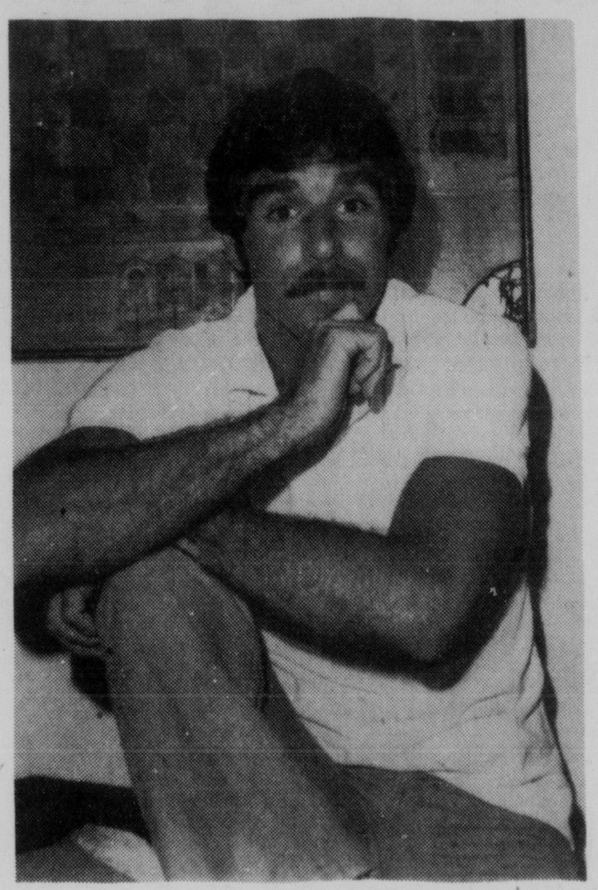

"My biggest joy," he said recently, in his modest apartment in the Chelsea section of Manhattan, "is to put on a gorilla costume and drive my '71 Dodge pickup truck to the corner of University and Eighth Street in the Village, and give away bananas.

"I'm not kidding. It's more fun than anything I know of. And who better to give away bananas than a gorilla?

"My friend and I go to Jersey and buy a couple cases of bananas cheap at a farmer's market. We come back and have a ball.

"I even have a Santa Claus costume and I go in the summer, or at Easter or Thanksgiving, and give away toys on the corner. I don't go to bars or hang out around town. And so I'll take the $15 or $20 I'd spend in a bar and buy a gross of toys — like Indian head bands, or toy cowboys, or rubber raspberries that make the Bronx cheer — you've got so many you can't even give 'em all out.

"Sometimes we'll have contests. Like, who can eat 12 salty crackers, one at a time, in 30 second? By six crackers, the kids are so thirsty and all gummy with 'em, that they can't go on. Wow. We all laugh like crazy.

Harry Reems . . . caught in legal web

"But I haven't been able to do this for nearly a year now. I've become a professional fundraiser. It's unbelievable. It'll cost me for my defense about $200,000. Where does a guy get such money just to fight for his freedom? I've got about $1,000 left of personal savings.

"And I can't work. My time is taken up almost completely with mailings and phone calls and appearances. And then, even when I do get a call to work, like I did recently to go to Rome for a legitimate picture. I'd have to put up $10,000 in green cash to get my passport.

"And of course I don't do porno films any more. I haven't since the Miller ruling in 1973. I'm not dumb. I knew it would hurt me if I continued.

"And one night in 1974, at about three in the morning, there was a knock at my door. It was the FBI. And they took me to the police station. That was the beginning of this incredible nightmare.

"You know, I've never been a philosopher or a psychologist and I can't really discuss in depth all the ramifications of this case. I've always been a guy who just wanted to have fun. I became an actor because I thought it would be a hoot. I did it just after my honorable discharge from the Marines. I was working off - off - Broadway, and I was doing some acting with the National Shakespeare Company, when a friend told me about porno films. He said they needed someone.

"I went down to Florida with the 'Deep Throat' company as a lighting technician. I got $25 a day, and a welcome respite from waiting on tables to earn a living.

"One day they needed someone in front of the camera. They said they'd pay $100 a day. I did it. One day. That was all, for 'Deep Throat.'

"The assistant U.S. attorney said that he wanted a male actor because he figured the trial would get added publicity and a man is less likely to pick up sympathy than a woman. Imagine that!"

Streicher collects antiques and circus stuff. He is an expert ball juggler. He took out three orange rubber balls and showed his tricks. He was terrific. Three and four balls whipping in blurry circles and arcs and diagonals as if on a string — behind his back, over his head, off his knee. Faster and faster and faster did he juggle, as he himself is being juggled.

Retail prices again mixed in food survey

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Retail food prices were mixed again this week with individual items showing wide fluctuations from a week ago, according to the Missouri Farm Bureau's weekly marketbasket survey.

Prices for the 21 food items checked at 50 grocery stores across the state varied from dime hikes to 14 cent declines over last week, the survey of average prices showed.

On the rising side for beef cuts was arm roast, which rose a dime a pound to $1.14, followed by rib steak, up four cents a pound to $1.69, and blade roast, up three cents to 84 cents a pound.

But T-Bone steak dropped 14 cents a pound to $2.05 and sirloin steak was eight cents a pound lower at $1.88.

Round steak was down three cents a pound to $1.46 and ground beef was two cents cheaper at 76 cents a pound.

Ham cuts were six cents a pound lower with shank portions falling to 95 cents and butt portions to $1.07.

Center cut chops were four cents lower at $1.84 while pork steak climbed nine cents a pound to $1.41 and pork blade roast was a nickel higher at $1.34 a pound.

Chicken was a penny a pound higher with whole fryers up to 54 cents and cut up parts up to 62 cents.

A gallon of whole milk was two cents cheaper at $1.53 while 2 per cent remained steady at $1.48.

A 1 1-2 pound loaf of white bread was 12 cents cheaper at 54 cents while 10 pounds of red potatoes were down a nickel to $1.41.

Mrs. Mildred Goddard. . .
. . . at home with a good book

Can be 'happiest years of your life'

Involvement is key to good retirement

By KAREN FLANDERMEYER
Living Today Editor

"I think older people would be a lot healthier if they were more active," says 76-year-old Mildred Goddard.

Active is the one adjective that best describes Mrs. Goddard, 406 South Quincy, who is the Pettis County chairman of Older Adults Transportation System (OATS), and member of the Altrusa Club, Business and Professional Women's Club, Sorosis, Daughters of the American Revolution, American Association of Retired Persons, Community Retired Teachers Association, and at Wesley United Methodist Church, past chairman of the board and member of Wesley United Methodist Women.

Mrs. Goddard, in her capacity as international relations chairman with the Altrusa Club and chairman of Americanism and citizenship with DAR, was instrumental in citizenship classes for foreign born wives of servicemen at Whiteman Air Force Base, Knob Noster. The classes were held every Wednesday night for two years. Another achievement of Mrs. Goddard's came in 1973 when she won the DIANA award, a honorary program sponsored by Rho Tau chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha.

Retirement can be a "sad time for some people or it can be the happiest years of your life," Mrs. Goddard feels. "It can only be a happy time if you get involved in things, if you're able. Those who are not, we're trying to do something for them."

Specifically, Mrs. Goddard, as Pettis County OATS chairman, was speaking of her current fund raising effort to buy a handicapped bus which would feature a hydraulic lift and accommodate five wheelchairs or 25 passengers. In addition to getting people to medical appointments and meals (such as Walk-in Meals), the bus could be used to transport children to the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabiliation Center and Sheltered workshop, Mrs. Goddard said. She spoke highly of the OATS bus driver, Ellen Rickerson.

Good nutrition is important to retired persons, says Mrs. Goddard, and she strongly recommends the Walk-in Meals program at the Community Center for balanced meals at a reasonable price. "People go there, talk, play cards, sing, see movies-have the best time," she says, "and for persons without transportation, OATS can get them there." Mrs. Goddard said, despite differences in personalities, "It's amazing how quickly persons learn to enjoy each other."

For 26 years before retiring in 1965, Mrs. Goddard was the manager of the Sears Catalog Store in Sedalia. Before she was married in 1935 to Ray Goddard, who died in 1952, she taught school and was in charge of curriculum for the Sedalia school district. "During my professions," she said, "the thing that carried me through is that I love people."

A busy career has lead to a busy retirement for Mrs. Goddard. She still manages three farms, a filling station and rental property.

"If you don't want retirement to be the end of your life, you have to plan for it when you're young," she advises. Mrs. Goddard suggests buying U.S. savings bonds and putting some money away each month in a savings account. She also thinks investing in good solid growth stocks is a wise idea. Young couples should "buy an old home," she says. "It has a charm that newer ones don't have. Clean out the attic--the antiques found could be worth a fortune." Mrs. Goddard's home is filled with beautiful antiques and has been the site of homes tours on many occasions, she said.

In the midst of all her activities, Mrs. Goddard says, "Once in a great while, I have a 'me' day. I sleep late, have a late breakfast and do whatever I want." Doing whatever she wants usually boils down to sharing the day with a good book. "TV is great," she says, "but one should learn and enjoy reading. Nothing's better than a good book."

Mrs. Goddard admits, "I know I should drop some things. I have no desire to be president of any organization, other than OATS and at church, but I love to meet friends downtown for lunch and travel.

"I firmly believe that recreation is just as important to an older person as medicine.

"If you could see the people enjoy those things (like an OATS dinner and theatre trip), it's a joy you can't believe."

League drives for candidates' debates

Calling for "equal time for issues," the League of Women voters of Missouri announced Friday its participation in a nationwide League drive to bring the two major presidential candidates together in a series of face-to-face debates. The Sedalia-Pettis County League will participate fully, president Esther Ellison said.

If the candidates agree to participate, it will mark the first time in 16 years that the nation will be offered presidential debates.

The first step in this national drive will be the collection of at least four million signatures calling for the candidates to debate one another before the November election.

In announcing the Missouri League's participation in the drive, Mrs. Julian Hall, president, said, "We want to make it clear to the two major presidential candidates that the public wants solid answers as to where the candidates stand on issues. The signatures on the petitions will display the voters desire to know how both candidates intend to deal with the nation's problems if elected to the presidency. A petition drive of this magnitude will clearly demonstrate that presidential candidates' debates are a vital part of political accountabi lity.

The country's 136,000 League members will each be asked to obtain at least 30 signatures on a petition which simply states: "We, the people, urge the major party candidates for President to meet in public debate on the issues facing the country." The local League will have petitions available for all who are interested in signing or getting others to sign.

Johnson wants solutions to inflationary problems

State Rep. Bob Johnson, R-Lee's Summit, charged Congress with throwing in the towel on seeking solutions to inflation problems at the Pettis County Republican Women's Club meeting Tuesday.

"The behavior of Congress in passing a budget splashed with $40 to $75 billion worth of red ink is totally irresponsible," Johnson told the women gathered at the State Fair Restaurant. "Economic recovery has already been started and a projected $51 billion deficit for next year is too much stimulation for the American economy. If the deficit budget is not drastically reduced, a new round of inflation will be triggered by 1978.

"In addition, by its passage of a congressional pay raise tied to cost of living increases, Congress is essentially saying, 'We've given up on solving inflation and we are only concerned with ourselves,' " said Johnson, who has filed for the Republican nomination to the U.S. House of Representatives for Missouri's fourth district. "The cost of living increases are directly related to rate of inflation and Congress is only protecting itself instead of addressing the problem and such misguided action is . . . a gross conflict of interest."

Johnson called for raising the federal estate tax exemption from $60,000 to $200,000 to compensate for inflation and the higher capital requirements of farming. "The federal estate tax threatens every family farm operation in the nation with liquidation. These farms. . . should not be the object of forced sales to feed an already bloated bureaucracy," he said.

Government to initiate tougher pollution check

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government admits its efforts to monitor new car emissions have failed and plans to begin pulling cars from the factory assembly line at random to check their antipollution performance.

The tougher emission control plan will debut this summer along with 1977 model cars, the Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday.

At present, EPA runs 50,000-mile compliance checks on samples of each auto model before it is allowed to go into production.

Until now, the EPA has certified entire model lines of new cars after running 50,000-mile compliance tests on a small number of samples, but the agency says that has not guaranteed that the thousands of cars rolling off the assembly lines actually perform as well as the samples.

The results of EPA on-the-street tests released in March showed 67 per cent of cars in use failed to comply with the law by emitting too much hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide or oxides of nitrogen.

"The auto manufacturers' own data indicate that more than half a million 1976 model cars did not satisfy the federal emission requirements when they came off the assembly line," said EPA Administrator Russell E. Train. "EPA data on 1975 vehicles in actual use suggest even higher noncompliance.

"Testing cars at the assembly line to check their emissions control performance will help ensure that cars are being built the way they were designed, and provide a measure of assurance that cars on the road will meet federal air pollution standards."

EPA said it would select a specified number of vehicles — cars or light duty trucks — at random from the assembly line of each model, to test its emission of pollution against federal clean air standards.

If 40 per cent of the cars tested in any model line fail the test, the agency said, the entire model line may be barred from the market until the problem is corrected and the manufacturer is making vehicles that comply with the standards.

The EPA had earlier proposed suspending certification for any model with just a 10 per cent failure rate.

Living in sunny L.A.

Ex-CBS head is glad he quit

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last May, Robert D. Wood resigned as head of CBS-TV after more than seven successful years. He also quit New York to return to his favorite locale for living — sunny Southern California.

It was a surprising move, leaving the power, big salary and pin-striped perquisites of CBS in Fun City. But Wood, born in Idaho, raised in Beverly Hills, says he has no regrets about his decision.

"To be back here, with my friends, my family, back where I was raised — geez, there's no way I can describe my exhilaration," said Wood, his voice as cheery as the day he was interviewed.

The man who gave the nod to a bold new show called "All in the Family" in 1971 and began a revolution in situation comedy isn't a member of the shuffleboard set yet. He's only 51, still active in TV.

He now heads Nephi Productions, Nephi being the name of the small Idaho town where he spent his boyhood summers. The company will develop TV shows exclusively for CBS — which Wood joined in 1949 — for at least four years. He already has four projects on the drawing boards.

They are a two-hour drama about a father and son; a pilot for a series about South Pacific families in late 1941, before the war; a Saturday morning variety show for kids; and another possible series starring award-winning playwright-actor Jason Miller.

Former president Wood, in short, now is producer Wood. So he was asked how he now regards something some top producers here are fighting in court — the sanitized "family viewing" hour the networks adopted last season in response to public beefs about TV sex and-or violence.

He was diplomatic about it, which is natural since his network pushed it and he had to defend it while at the helm of CBS-TV.

He said as a budding TV producer he considers the family hour "as a helluva opportunity. In fact, one of the pilots we're doing, the South Pacific thing, could fit in it easily.

"I'm not getting into the embattled points of view on the family hour. I'm just saying it's there, I know why it's there, I know the merits behind it and I'm going to see how much I can creatively make of the opportunity it presents."

He said it had created a need for more family shows like CBS' "The Waltons" or NBC's "Little House on the Prairie," and "as long as those needs are there ... there's an excellent opportunity to fill them."

Protesters denied use of park in K.C.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A group of protesters gathering here for the Republican National Convention in August have been denied use of Penn Valley Park near the convention arena as a campsite.

Announcement of the denial was made Tuesday by the city parks and recreation commissioners in response to a request by the Kansas City Convention Coalition, representing the protesters.

"Protesters have a right to dissent, but not at the expense of the public," said Commissioner Carl Migliazzo.

The coalition also had asked for water and sanitation provisions. The commissioners said they may use the park for recreation only.

Joplin police group to take case to people

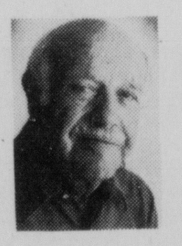

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — The Joplin Police Association has decided to take its case to the people instead of striking in response to a City Council decision denying policemen a 15 per cent pay increase.

Ed Perfield, vice president of the police association, said the members decided definitely not to strike or engage in any other type of work protest.

Perfield said he believed the people of Joplin would support the police when they learn the facts.

Following the council's meeting Monday, City Manager Robert Metzinger said it would be unfair to give the police a raise without giving a raise to the rest of the city employes.

If the citizens do not support the police's request, Perfield said, the police association would meet again to decide what to do.

Growing Older

Over 60s also need sex and love

By HAROLD BLUMENFELD

The birds do it, the bees do it — and even the Senior Citizens do it. It's a thing called SEX which has been defined as procreation or recreation.

These may be the fringe benefits but sex is much more. It is love, communication, a reaching out for tenderness. And it isn't something the young have discovered. It's been around a long, long time.

Mort Katz, a Fellow of the American Orthopsychiatric Association and past president of the Family Therapy Association of Texas, has written an excellent and informative book, "Marriage Survival Kit," (Farnsworth Publishing Co., Rockville Center' N.Y.)

While it is basically directed at the young to help perpetuate their marriages, which too often now seem to be falling apart, it deals with personal relationships in all age groups. Katz writes, "The secret of eternal youth is tenderness which is the emotional growth vitamin. One of the greatest discoveries we are making about older people is that they need to feel loved and accepted by each other, and that part of this can include staying sexually active. By expressing loving feelings with words and through physical means, people of any age can give new meaning to a joyous survival."

I recently joined 60 other Senior Citizens to listen to an interesting and frank lecture on Sex after Sixty given by Mrs. Toby Berman, a professional family counselor and sex therapist. Unfortunately, too many people have been raised to believe that where sex "rears its ugly head" it is sinful and dirty. Five people walked out of the room when she began talking about the physical aspects of sex. She said at all her lectures invariably some people think it's dirty talk and leave. And a thought came to me. How come I always hear the expression "dirty old man" but never "dirty young man?"

Toby Berman said, "Sex in our culture is often erroneously equated only with youth. College dormitories have opened their doors; but nursing homes keep the doors shut, isolating and ignoring the needs of older people. A good sexual relationship, at any and all ages, is just another way of communicating, and lack of communication can cause problems on many levels."

She recommends honesty and frankness in talking with one's sexual partner to achieve maximum pleasure which, even as we grow older, can be physically satisfying.

Problems of dysfunctions should be discussed with one's doctor or a therapist. Or some might prefer discussing their sexual problems with their clergyman. But apparently many clergymen feel they need special training to deal with their parishioners' sexual problems; how to tell them that sex is a natural and essential part of living. Recently, the 1200-member American Association of Pastoral Counsellors meeting in Fort Lauderdale, invited several sex therapists to tell them how they could provide sex information to those who needed this counseling.

There's a story told about the 84-year-old Lothario who was invited by an 80-year-old to her apartment for tea and cookies. Still feeling, as well as remembering, the passions of his youth, he became amorous.

"Oh, no," she said. "I can't because of my mother and father." He looked at her quizzically and asked, "You mean you still have a mother and father?" "Oh, yes," she answered, "Mother Nature and Father Time."

Our culture may relate the joys of sex to youth, but I have an older friend who sent me news clippings to prove it can be fun at 70 and even past 80. One item reported the establishing of a "House of Easy Virtue" in Paris for males over 65. The other told of a group of swinging 70-plus widows in California who were looking for the un-sinful joys of their youth. They call their club "The Den of Antiquity."

Final tax cut passage faces hurdle in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Extension of individual tax cuts through 1977 is a step closer today, but it may be another two months before taxpayers know for sure whether they will face a tax hike next year.

The Senate voted 66 to 28 on Tuesday to extend the tax cuts for 18 months. But the House cannot act on the extension until the Senate passes the complex tax-revision bill to which the reductions are attached.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he hopes — but cannot guarantee — that the Senate will approve a tax bill before recessing Aug. 11 for the Republican convention.

Once the Senate passes the bill, a Senate-House conference must work out the countless differences in the Senate's tax-revision bill and one approved by the House last year. That could take weeks.

No matter how long it takes Congress to complete work on a tax-revision bill, there is virtually no chance that American workers will feel a bigger tax bite on their paychecks this year.

The $15-billion worth of individual tax cuts technically expired once already, on July 1, but Congress hurriedly froze withholding rates until Sept. 1. Congressional leaders indicate the rates will be frozen again if more time is required to complete action on the tax bill.

In addition to voting for an 18-month renewal of the tax cuts, the Senate agreed Tuesday, 50 to 42, to allow motorists to continue deducting all their state and local gasoline taxes.

The Finance Committee, in writing the bill, voted to allow deduction of only the gasoline taxes that total more than $50 a year. That would have raised the federal tax bills of millions of Americans but it would have saved the Treasury about $300 million a year.

The Senate rejected, 54 to 38, an effort by Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., to eliminate the gasoline-tax deduction altogether on grounds it encourages energy waste.

The key elements of the tax-cut package include:

—A provision allowing a $35 credit — which is subtracted directly from taxes owed — for each taxpayer and each dependent to be extended through 1977. If it is to his or her advantage, the taxpayer instead could take a credit of 2 per cent of his first $9,000 of taxable income, to a maximum credit of $180.

—Permanent increases in the standard deduction, which are available only to taxpayers who do not itemize deductions. The minimum standard deduction is $1,700 for single persons and $2,100 for couples. The maximum is 16 per cent of adjusted gross income, up to $2,400 for single persons and $2,800 for couples.

—A provision making permanent a special "work bonus" for poor, working families with children. This allows a credit of 10 per cent of earned income up to $4,000, or a top credit of $400. The credit is scaled down before being phased out when income reaches $8,000.

The credit is aimed at giving poor people an incentive for staying off welfare and keeping their jobs.

Unarmed bomb found at amusement park

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An unarmed explosive device was recovered Tuesday at the Worlds of Fun amusement park as police and FBI agents investigated an extortion demand.

Officials released few details.

"An extortion demand was made and an unarmed explosive device was found at Worlds of Fun," said Lee Derrough, general manager of the park. "This situation did not disturb normal operation of the park nor did it create any danger for our guests. I have been advised by the authorities not to make any further comments on this matter at the present time."

The police bomb and arson squad removed the explosive device from the park.

A park employe said authorities closed the European section of the park for several minutes and removed a box from under a bumper ride.

Police and the FBI were investigating the possibility the device was linked to the discovery of what apparently was an extortion note found by a park ranger on a tree near Gillham Park in midtown Kansas City.

Audit notes prison system violations

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor George Lehr has reported that several operations of the state's prison industries and prison farms may be in violation of state law.

In a report issued Tuesday on the financial condition of the correction's division's working capital revolving fund for the two-year period that ended in June 1975, Lehr cited production of soybeans solely for open market sales as one of the violations.

Lehr also pointed out subsidized laundry service for the Missouri Training Center for Men in Moberly, failure to charge for special license plates provided members of the legislature and purchase of a video tape system as other possibile violations.

The working capital revolving fund is used for expansion and development of prison industries and prison farms, which include crop and livestock production, metal and furniture factories and a laundry operation. Most sales by prison industries and farms are to state agencies, with state law permitting only excess production to be sold on the open market.

The audit said, however, that soybeans were being raised solely for open market sales, and while officials were aware of the legal provsion they choose to continue growing soybeans rather than let the land lie idle.

Prison farm officials said, however, that the farms, unable to process soybeans, were forced to purchase soybean meal on the open market for cattle operations. Since those purchases are in excess of the crop raised by the farms, that situation justifies the continued production and open market sales of soybeans, they said.

Officials did say they would implement procedures for charging for the special license plates for lawmakers and seek additional funds so the laundry subsidy for Moberly inmates, which totaled more than $100,000 for the two years, could be ended.

Under state law, prison industries must charge for all labor and materials at rates uniform to all customers.

Lehr claimed the taping equipment did not meet the requirements that revolving fund money be spent solely for operations of prison industries and farms.

But officials said the equipment would be used to train prison industry personnel as well as the inmates.

Gasoline use in June down from year ago

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Fuel consumption by Missouri motorists dropped in June from the same month a year ago, marking the first month this year that usage was lower than in 1975, statistics released Tuesday by the Revenue Department showed.

Usage for the month was down about 8,500 gallons compared with June 1975, when motorists used about 245.85 million gallons, Despite the decline in June, total consumption for the first six months this year was 6.5 per cent higher than for the same period in 1975 and well above usage in 1974.

Receipts from fuel taxes for the month were $17.3 million, however, up from the $17.2 million collected in June 1975, primarily because of reduced tax refunds for exempted fuel usage.

Total receipts for this year were $95.2 million through June compared with $89.3 million during the first six months of 1975.

REC is not REA

Missouri's Rural Electric Cooperatives have been providing service for over forty years. But it seems we have an indentity crisis.

Many people refer to us as REA instead of REC.

REA stands for the Rural Electrification Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture which loans money to the REC systems.

REA was formed by an act of Congress in 1936 to help provide electricity to rural America. Through hard work, dedication, and the REA loan program, member-owned Rural Electric Cooperatives prospered.

The REA loan program is one of the most successful in history. Missouri's Rural Electric Cooperatives pay back with interest and on schedule all the money they have borrowed from REA.

So remember, REC is not REA.

Usery now turns to rubber strike

CLEVELAND (AP) — U.S. Labor Secretary William J. Usery Jr., says the three-month-old rubber industry strike is among the top items on his agenda following Tuesday's settlement of the Westinghouse Electric strike.

Usery took a personal hand in the Westinghouse talks, returning to Washington, after settlements was announced.

An aide said Usery was in contact with top rubber industry negotiators before going to Pittsburgh for the Westinghouse talks Sunday and that he would continue those conversations in an effort to get representatives of the United Rubber Workers and the industry's Big Four back to the bargaining table.

The talks with Firestone, which the URW picked as its target for setting new industry pay scales, broke down two weeks ago, after intensive negotiations under Usery's supervision failed to break the deadlock.

About 60,000 Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and Uniroyal workers have been on strike since April 21, when the old contracts expired.

Another 1,200 Dayton Tire & Rubber Co., workers joined the strike Tuesday after part of their contract covering pensions and insurance expired.

Union leaders said Dayton's wage agreement doesn't expire until next year, but the strike was called as a gesture of solidarity.

Some other URW locals, including those at General Tire & Rubber Co., have continued to work after their contracts expired.

Canning strike closes 76 plants in California

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A harvesttime strike is under way by the workers who process most of the nation's canned tomatoes, apricots, peaches and fruit cocktail.

The walkout on Tuesday shut down 76 plants which handle 95 per cent of California's canning production. Up to 70,000 cannery workers are employed at the peak of the harvest season, which is now getting under full steam.

Agricultural leaders appealed to President Ford to intervene with a Taft-Hartley injunction for an 80-day cooling-off period.

Shortly after the walkout began, Director James F. Scearce of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service summoned both sides to Washington for talks Thursday.

"It is extremely important that every effort be made to settle this dispute as quickly as possible in order to avert the loss of food crops," Scearce said.

Ross Wurm of California Processors, Inc., said California produces all of the nation's canned apricots, cling peaches and fruit cocktail.

The state also turns out about 85 per cent of the tomatoes, including peeled tomatoes, tomato juice, catsup and tomato sauce, produced in the United States, Wurm said.

Cannery representatives said there is no way to estimate the immediate effects the strike will have on the prices of the affected vegetable and fruit products.

The processors, however, have larger supplies than usual sitting in warehouses and that could toughen their bargaining stand.

Freddy F. Sanchez, chief negotiator for the California Council of Cannery and Food Processing Unions, said he will go to Washington for the talks but that "in the interval, the strike will continue."

Among the major national food processors affected by the walkout are Del Monte, Gerber's, Hunt's and Libby's.

The Farm Bureau has estimated that a six-week strike could cause $1 billion in losses to California's agricultural industry — the nation's biggest farm state, which has already been hit with an estimated $1 billion in losses from a severe drought.

The 13 Teamster union locals involved have asked for increases of about $3 per hour over a three-year period. The canners say they have offered an additional 95 cents to $1.43 per hour, depending on the cost of living.

Wages have averaged $4.93 per hour, plus an additional 73 cents an hour in fringe benefits, under the contract which expired June 30.

Jail workers arraigned on drug charges

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Four Jackson County Jail employes have been arraigned on drug charges and three others have been fired for refusing to take lie detector tests, James Bergfalk, corrections director, said Tuesday.

The four charged pleaded innocent and were allowed to remain free without posting bond. They were fired when they were indicted by a grand jury.

Bergfalk said he is reviewing the cases of eight other men who were suspended on a preliminary finding that they failed to cooperate.

Lene Fuimaono Jr., 19, a custodian, was arraigned on charges of possessing and delivering a depressant drug. Algon D. George, 31, a corrections supervisor, was charged with possessing a depressant drug. James E. Gordon, 22, a corrections officer, was charged with possessing marijuana and a depressant drug. Henry W. Preston, 35, a laundry worker, was charged with possessing a depressant drug.

A fifth man, not employed by the county, was named in the indictment returned last Thursday; but officers have not been able to arrest him and his identity has not been disclosed.

When Gen. Eisenhower was inaugurated as President he wore a homburg instead of the traditional top hat. But President Kennedy re-instituted the top hat tradition for his inauguration, according to the American Formalwear Association.

Woman's life saved by open phone line

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Mrs. Eunice R. Rigg, 64, collapsed from internal bleeding shortly after picking up a phone and dialing "operator," but a Wyandotte County sheriff's dispatcher listening to the volume of sirens coming through the open phone line was able to direct the ambulance to her apartment and save her life.

The operator switched the call to the sheriff's office.

"The woman's voice was faint and unsteady, but I thought she said 6815 Parallel," said John G. Holt, 29, the dispatcher. He did not hear any more.

Holt sent an ambulance out Parallel Avenue.

On the open telephone line, Holt soon could hear its siren. The siren got louder and louder, then faded. Holt told rescue workers to turn the ambulance around and when the siren reached full pitch again, he told them to stop.

The only likely place nearby was an apartment house, so the ambulance crew, policemen and firemen started knocking on doors. Holt could hear them on the telephone. He suddenly heard seven or eight loud knocks.

"That's it, that's it," he shouted.

The apartment manager was standing by with a passkey. The ambulance crew found Mrs. Rigg on the floor, semiconscious and unable to talk. At the hospital, a supervisor said there had been little time to spare.

'Beverly Hillbillies' star a success in new career behind camera

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Hollywood is still the place where the lightning can strike, where a man (or a woman) can become a millionaire on the strength of one picture, where dreams do come true.

"This is what 'MaconCounty Line' bought," said Max Baer, with a broad gesture of his immense arms.

The gesture took in the rear of his house, high up in a Beverly Hills canyon. There was a huge swimming pool with a built-in waterfall behind it.

Then he took me around the front of the house, where a platoon of workmen were working with bricks and concrete and mounds of dirt.

"It's all being landscaped," Baer said. "Over here will be a brick patio, and there will be brick and iron gates. That hillside will be covered with flowers.

"I'm putting in 8,500 plants. I want to make this like the Botanical Gardens. I don't like to go out much."

He said he was going to have a projection room built in the house. And a new editing room, because he edits his pictures at home. Before he's through, he said, he'd have one of the showplaces of the Los Angeles area. His claim is believable.

The implication was that all this was the fruits of his three films, the three he produced. They were "Macon County Line," "The McCullochs" and the just-released "Ode to Billy Joe." Baer directed the latter two, as well as producing them.

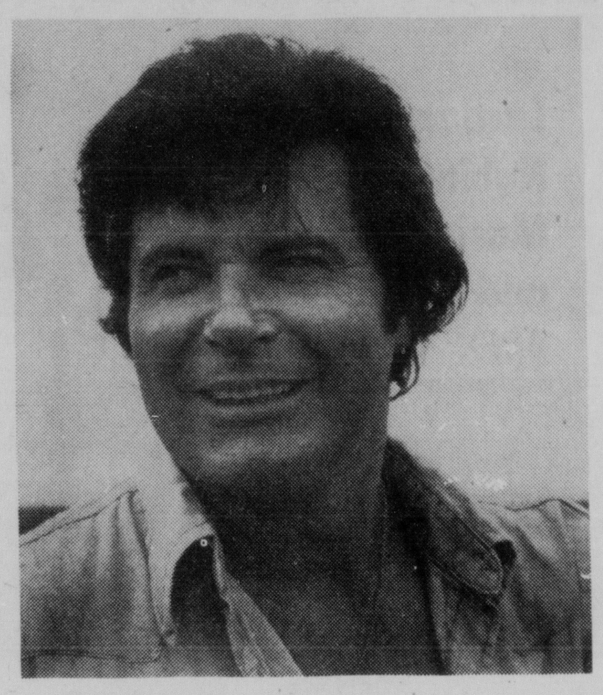

You might think that some of his money came from his nine years on the huge TV hit, The Beverly Hillbillies. Baer played Jethro on the show for all those years.

He says no. A divorce and some other things saw to that.

"After nine years on the Hillbillies and my divorce," he says, "I had $30,000 left. That's all."

But today the house he lives in is his, all his. He doesn't owe a dime.

"It cost me $210,000 when I bought it a year and a half ago," he says. "And I guess I've put another $175,000 in it. But it's all mine.

Max Baer . . . films for the public

'I'm realistic about money and about life. It's a personal thing with me. I want to own my home outright. You never know what can happen — but if you own your home, you can't be too bad."

After Hillbillies mosied off into the TV sunset, Max Baer floundered for a few years. He wanted to act, but it was hard to find jobs because he was so closely involved with the role of Jethro and his semi-stupidity.

He'd still like to act. But he's discovered, in producing and directing, that he has the key to the mint.

"I love acting," he says, "but nobody'll give me a job. And I won't hire myself."

He says he'd rather be Steve McQueen or Burt Lancaster than anybody. To him, seeing Lancaster in "Birdman of Alcatraz" was a major event.

"That was Burt the way he really is," Baer says. "In real life, he's quiet, soft-spoken, and the only film in which he played himself was 'Birdman.'"

Baer is a self-proclaimed "movie nut." He's always been one. Even as a kid growing up, the son of a one-time heavyweight boxing champion, he loved movies more than anything else.

He has seen so many films and absorbed so much of what he's seen and read that he has become an expert on movie trivia. He knows the name of the art director of obscure films of the '40s.

"Did you know," he'll say, "that Robert Wise, before he became a director, was the editor on 'Citizen Kane'?"

Now he finds he loves making films as much as seeing them. He loves the putting together of what Hollywood calls "packages" — the script, the stars, the director — and loves shepherding the whole project to its conclusion.

"Other people like to go on vacation, but making movies is my vacation," he says. "I'm like a kid with a toy. And I feel fortunate making a good living doing something I'd do for free."

He plans his films from start to finish. And the finish he guards jealously, now that he has the muscle to get his own way. He has the final cut on his films; even Warner Bros., his current studio, had no cut at all on "Ode to Billy Joe." Baer did it all himself, with nobody telling him yes or no.

His next one, which is now being prepared, is a comedy about women in the Army. It's about 12 girls going through boot camp. He thinks he'll use 12 unknowns, although he'd like Shelley Winters as one of the officers. The big climax is an ice hockey game between the recruits and the non-coms, and the prospect of Shelley on skates is tantalizing.

Baer's pictures have, so far, done well. He believes one reason is that he makes films for the public, not for himself.

"I think," he says, "that I can put myself in the audience's mind and tell what they're going to like. A picture has to work with an audience, not just in the director's head.

"Too many directors today feel they must make their films just for themselves. They're imbeciles. If they feel that way, they should put up their own money."

He believes strongly that a film can be both an artistic hit and a commercial success.

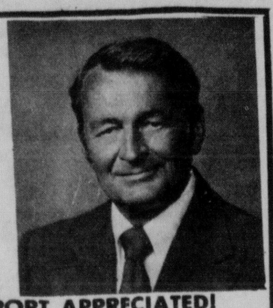

"Sure, it can be both," he says. "Look at 'Midnight Cowboy' and 'Cuckoo's Nest.' If you strive for money, that doesn't automatically make you a prostitute. It doesn't mean you're making garbage. I'm trying to do both—make films that are commercial hits and are good films, too.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Husband's pills concern his wife

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband is 45 years old, 6 foot 3 and weights 190 pounds. He runs about eight miles a week in four periods, swims a mile three times a week, plays tennis at least once a week, often two or three hours on Saturday and Sunday in summer.

I am very conscious of nutrition and he has a good diet. Even so, for a number of years he has been taking vitamin supplements, including extra vitamin C (500 milligrams per day) which I don't feel necessary in view of his balanced diet.

Recently he had a company physical and has received $35 worth of pills with no explanation except to take daily. He gets Cyclospasmol for his Raynaud's disease which I assume he will take only in coldest weather. The disease does not really bother him except that his fingers turn white when it is cold. He is to take Sterazolidin for his occasional complaints of tennis elbow, which has never been severe enough to prevent him from accepting any invitation to play. He also gets Colbenemid because on three separate occasions during a three week period his uric acid count has been high. He had been complaining about a sore second toe during the jogging and tennis.

The doctor who prescribed all these pills is a board certified internist and undoubtedly capable. But I feel that he may be catering to mild hypochondria and I am somewhat concerned about the interaction of all these pills, since at the moment my husband is taking all three in addition to his vitamins. Have you any comment?

Dear Reader — Yes, I have a comment. I appreciate your concern but it is misplaced. It is easy for you to say your husband's white fingers in cold weather don't bother him but he may be a better judge of how his fingers feel. It so happens that Cyclospasmol is not effective if used sporadically as you suggest only in coldest weather.

Anyone, particularly a man, since men are more susceptible to its complications, with abnormally high uric acid levels should be taking medicine to control it. This goes double if the man has symptoms. Untreated high uric acid levels often lead to gradual changes that could be prevented by the good treatment your husband is receiving.

Your husband would not be the first person with some elbow problems who persists in playing tennis and that is no argument against him having medicines for it.

You needn't worry about the interaction of the various medicines and vitamins that your husband is taking. You are probably right that he doesn't need the extra vitamin C but in that amount it is not likely to hurt him either. I would be more concerned about the eggs you feed him regularly that you mentioned in the rest of your letter describing your healthy diet for him.

It sounds to me as if your husband is fortunate to have a good doctor who is doing his best to not only help your husband with his present problems but help keep him in good health for the future. You should be pleased, not concerned. (NEA)

There were few if any vacant seats when United Auto Workers bargainers and General Motors representatives got together in Detroit earlier this week for this year's round of contract talks. UAW bargainers flank the left side of the 52-foot-long table and GM representatives sit on the right side. Talks with Ford, Chrysler and American Motors were to begin later this week.

Soybean, corn crops hurting

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Both corn and soybean crops are suffering in drier areas of the state despite rains last week, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said.

Soil moisture statewide is 68 per cent short, the reporting service said.

About a fifth of the soybean crops were blooming with 2 per cent in poor condition, 53 per cent fair, 43 per cent good and the rest in excellent condition.

About 2 per cent of the corn crop was in poor condition with 36 per cent fair, 59 per cent good and 3 per cent excellent. About 39 per cent of the corn was in the silking stage.

Most of the wheat and 80 per cent of the oat crop were harvested, the reporting service said. Grain sorghum was beginning to head.

Almost 77 per cent of the second cutting of alfalfa was complete and 86 per cent of the timothy-clover hay was harvested.

At 92, she's done it all: acting, writing, farming

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — The theater playbill said "beloved . .. delightful" in front of Izetta Jewel's name.

In history's list of remarkable women, the superlatives will be even grander.

Today, 92 and in a convalescent home here, she recalls success in a half-dozen careers — politics, farming, travel, social work, journalism and acting.

The secret, as the Fairmont, W. Va., Times once wrote, is her "grit."

As the first woman ever to address a national political convention, she "woke even a bored and tired audience," wrote Heywood Broun. A delegate nominated her for vice president.

President William Howard Taft got word of the sinking of the Titanic in 1912 while in Washington's Poli Theater but stayed on, enraptured by Miss Jewel's performance.

President Woodrow Wilson called her his favorite.

Helen Hayes was as thrilled at Izetta's birthday party in 1973 as she was as a child, playing a small role in a stage play in which Miss Jewell and Otis Skinner were the stars.

The League of Nations was her pet, and she spoke out frequently and tirelessly before and after it was born. In Tientsin, China, she was received by a boy emperor. In Rome, she met Mussolini while she attended the International Suffrage Congress.

In 1921 she was political chairman of the new National Women's party.

She twice sought the Democrats' U.S. Senate nomination from West Virginia, barely losing the second time and by a wider margin the first.

A native of Hackettstown, N.J., and daughter of an actress, Izetta Jewel trained for the theater at several eastern schools and began acting at the age of 15 in Boston. She played in stock company productions on both coasts, becoming the leading lady of the old Poli Theater.

A newspaper said Izetta was "the highest paid of any stock company star in the business" and had 35 marriage offers before she picked Rep. William Gay Brown Jr., D-W. Va., in 1914.

The young congressman died two years later, leaving his widow a reported $3.5 million and their daughter, Izetta Jewel, nicknamed Juno for Junior.

He also left three large farms in Kingwood, W. Va., which his widow took over. In no time she was a member of the first national women's committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation and a well known raiser of purebred milch cows.

In 1925, she married Hugh G. Miller, dean of engineering at George Washington University. Miller later taught at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., where his wife was named commissioner of public welfare.

In 1928, she was featured in the first play ever televised, sent from Schenectady's Station WGYA to a set with a three-inch screen in the home of a local electronics pioneer.

In 1944, after years of volunteer work in such Franklin D. Roosevelt efforts as the Works Progress Administration, she campaigned for FDR's fourth term and the Millers retired to southern California.

Miller, a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel, died in 1965. Their daughter is the wife of John C. A. Watkins, president and publisher of the Providence Journal Co. in Rhode Island.

A radio commentator's job in San Diego was the next challenge for Mrs. Miller, who was promptly elected a vice president of the American Women in Radio and Television.

The Portland Rose Festival, which named Izetta its first queen in 1908, honored her in its 50th anniversary parade in 1958.

Although she is now confined to a wheelchair at the Torrey Pines Convalescent Home in this posh San Diego suburb, until just recently she swam daily in the usually chill Pacific.

Business news

The board of directors of McGraw-Edison Co. recently increased the firm's quarterly dividend from 35 to 37½ cents per share of common stock, payable Sept. 12 to stockholders of record Aug. 12.

The company increased the quarterly dividend from 30 to 35 cents on April 1. The two increases have restored the dividend rate to its 1974 level, the company reported.

State Treasurer James I. Spainhower announced recently that four Pettis County banks will receive $480,000 from the third statewide allocation of inactive general funds. A total of over $60 million is being allocated statewide.

Banks receiving deposits through this allocation will pay the state approximately 6 per cent interest. Distribution is based the county's portion of state sales and income tax paid.

Deposits made available for Pettis County banks include $100,000 each for Missouri State Bank, Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust Co. and Smithton Bank, with $180,000 deposited at Third National Bank.

Water softener scours off soot

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns school buses that have been converted to other uses, but are still painted the usual way. This constitutes a traffic hazard. One does not know whether or not to stop for such a vehicle. — MRS. E.D.

DEAR POLLY — I have a bit of advice for the lady who burns out so many cords on her electric appliances. Plug the cord to the appliance before plugging it into the wall outlet. When disconnecting, disconnect from the wall socket first and the cords will last almost forever. I have never heard of a toaster cord burning out and probably will not, since the cord is permanently attached to the toaster. The small appliance manufacturers doubtless know this but have not, as yet divulged the information to the public. — TONY.

DEAR POLLY — When I need only a slice or two of onion, I slice off what is needed without peeling it and put the rest upside down in a saucer, cover with foil or plastic wrap and put in the refrigerator for future use. I do cucumbers and tomatoes the same way. They keep for days. — MRS. G.S.

DEAR POLLY — Lazy gardeners will find nothing works better than cardboard laid between plants. This is especially good for tomatoes. The cardboard has a four fold benefit — a clean place for the tomatoes to ripen, complete weed control, it lets moisture through but also keeps it in and lessens the times one must water the plants. Perhaps you are wondering where to get so much cardboard. Furniture stores or television shops are usually pleased to give it away. — MRS. D.N.P.

DEAR POLLY — Before putting tomato paste, etc. in the pot to make sauce, spray the pot with that no-stick vegetable spray. Continue your usual way of cooking and have no more worries about scorching. It really works. — BARBARA S.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — After a fire in our basement, the cement floor was left black. Nothing I have tried has helped it. Also, I would like to get rid of the strong smoke odor throughout the house. Hope someone can help me. — MRS. M.R.

DEAR MRS. M.R. — Try a water softening compound on your floor using about one-fourth cup of the compound to a gallon of hot water. Scour with a stiff brush. An abrasive household cleaner could be used at the same time. Rinse well. If need be, the water softening compound could be left on the dampened floor for several hours and then rinsed off. If the cement does not clean up as well as you would like, it may have to be painted with cement paint. A commercial household deodorant should freshen the smoke filled air quicker than anything else. Ammonia in bowls of water in each room (out of the way of children's prying hands) or bowls of vinegar in each room would also help, after the house has had a thorough airing. — POLLY

Financial benefits of no-till minimized

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Farmers practicing minimum tillage may be realizing a 20 to 30 per cent net savings in energy, but the necessity for additional herbicide use may offset immediate money savings, say agricultural economists at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

But farmers continue to go the no-till route because of better yields and because of benefits that may not directly show up in their bank accounts, the economists add.

"Besides saving fuel, time and labor, the farmer using minimum tillage or no-till can get into the field earlier in spring. That gives him more leeway when he's trying to beat the weather odds and still get all his field work done," according to David R. Johnson, soybean researcher at the Columbia campus.

Just how much the savings in time is worth to farmers in terms of dollars and cents depends on whether the farmer uses the time and labor saved to increase his farm's productivity, the economists said. Using conventional tilling, a farmer averages 5.3 hours of labor an acre, compared to 3.25 with reduced tilling and 2.55 with no-till.

Over 15 million gallons of fuel would be saved a year if every Missouri farmer switched to practicing reduced tillage, said Ed Constein, agricultural engineer on the Columbia campus.

But their are disadvantages to the no-till or reduced till practices. The farmer must be a good manager of chemicals and get some help from the weatherman, the economists said. The long term effects of the herbicides is also not known.

Democrats have formidable team

WASHINGTON — Bear with me, please for just one more observation about that Democratic convention and the performance of the two men chosen to carry the party's banner.

Rowan

Looking back, you sense that the greatest achievement was in getting all but a handful of delegates who believe in argument for its own sake to agree that the end of driving the Republicans out of the White House justifies almost any means.

Keynoter Barbara Jordan was criticized by some black delegates for not throwing out some rhetoric dealing more specifically and angrily with the plight of blacks. Just 24 hours after her speech, bad-taste rumors had Thurgood Marshall's health failing just in time for Carter to make good on a "deal" to name her to the Supreme Court, thus currying the favor of women and blacks.

The simple truth is that Barbara Jordan was doing, eloquently, what Jimmy Carter and Fritz Mondale also did shrewdly in their acceptance speeches. They all shied away from issues and promises that might make it easy for either President Ford or Ronald Reagan to exploit selfish jealousies and class prejudices, as Richard Nixon did so slickly in 1968 and 1972.

Consider the almost incredible fact that the passage in Carter's speech that drew the loudest, most sustained applause was this: "It is a time to guarantee an end to discrimination because of race or sex by the full involvement in the decision-making processes of our government of those who know what it is to suffer from discrimination. They'll be in if I'm elected."

But note, if you will, that Carter never specifically mentioned blacks in his speech. This surelyh arose from someone's deliberate judgment that blacks and other minorities will understand what that above statement promises, yet it does not evoke passions about "reverse discrimination" that would be stirred by specific promises to blacks. Carter got another roar of approval when he said, "We can have an America that provides excellence in the education of my child and your child and every child." But he was careful not to get into the issue of whether and how this is possible without some court-ordered busing.

An applause meter at that final night of the convention would have indicated beyond doubt the shape of the 1976 Democratic campaign:

—Again and again, Carter will deplore "the double standard of justice in America" and say, "I see no reason why big shot crooks should go free while the poor ones go to jail." And running-mate Mondale will talk more plainly about Watergate and "the party that brought us our worst scandal in history, led by a President who pardoned the man who did it."

—And Carter will win roars from the masses by calling our tax system "a disgrace to the human race," and when he promises an overhaul to take advantages from the rich, he will say, "You can depend on it," and the audiences will go wild.

—And Carter and Mondale will talk endlessly about providing jobs. They will try to link the Republican elites .. who base economic policies on the assumption that a bit of unemployment is tolerable, and Carter will add that "when unemployment prevails" they never stand in line looking for a job."

Carter is a very perceptive politician who knows that there are certain issues which not only have divided his party but which have been exploited handsomely by the Republicans. His strategy is to ensure that if those things become issues this year, it will be because the GOP nominee dredges them up. Carter is going to talk about what he perceives to be the horrors of the Nixon-Ford years — and the "new morality" he and Mondale offer.

When the Republicans gather in Kansas City next month we'll learn what counter-strategy they are devising.

Tougher time for nominee

By TOM TIEDE
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter is about to find out that his first 18 months of presidential politics were the easiest. All he has had to do so far was weather a Democratic fusillade against his accent, his ideas, his birthplace and his religion. Now comes the real fight, with the meanest, roughest, most conniving and shameless assault force in politics: the Republicans.

Tiede

It's no telling if Carter is ready, but the GOP is. For months a team of sewer-stepping young people from the Republican National Committee has been searching under every rock in Georgia for Carter dirt. The task force, reminiscent of the Republican organizations which institutionalized Watergate, has compiled a roomful of anti-Carter information which in weeks to come will be released to the public through leaks, whispers and official indignations.

The material is said to be largely an accumulation of alleged contradictions in Carter's statements and activities. For example, the task force gleefully notes that Carter, who crows about morality in government, was so friendly with Spiro Agnew that in 1973 he personally urged the former vice president to stay in office despite charges of corruption against him. This story is not new, Carter having admitted it on several occasions. But drawn up in documented form, Republicans feel it might negatively impress the voters.

Aside from this small caliber ammunition, the RNC snoopers have reportedly uncovered what in essence are smoking guns. Details are secret, but one Republican familiar with the gumshoe operation hints that Carter is most vulnerable regarding federal subsidies for his peanut farm operation. The Republican says the taxpayer cash has been substantial and wonders aloud "if it's not just possible Jimmy has become a millionaire the easy way." And he adds: "His business may have also prospered by his term as governor."

There are uncounted other nasties as well. Religious. Social. Political. Republicans have gathered a particularly large amount of information concerned with Carter's stormy relations with the Georgia legislature in 1971-1974. "We have concentrated on the years of his public life," the Republican official says, "but we have also gone back to his Navy days and before. I've only seen a small part of the data, but even that has been, well, very revealing."

Revealing, perhaps. But of whom? Four years after Richard Nixon's Committee to Re-Elect the President cut itself a special path in the political subterranean, imaginative GOP officers are again showing themselves to be somewhat like rotten fish by moonlight: they shine but they stink. Accentuating the negative is politics at its worse. Subtle hints of an opponent's evil is moral mugging. Organizing a task force to fashion character assassinations is, at this point in time, a slap at public tolerance.

It should be noted that the Republicans deny any impropriety, and where have we heard this before, on the grounds that attacking the enemy is a traditional election year tactic. Committee officers say no smears are intended, merely well researched facts "to which the public is entitled." For instance: if the Republicans have discovered (as they say they have) that Carter's family has mistreated some of its farmhands, "We think this is an indication of the man, and we think people should know about it now rather than later."

That premise is admittedly unassailable. The screening of office seekers must necessarily include personality and character scrutiny. But a task force for such? A herd of partisan detectives? There is little in the way of public protection that can come from organized fault finding, particularly when it is biased. Muckraking can be an honorable service; politicized, however, it fills with maggots.

"Hi there, farmer, what do you think of J. Carter?'

Well, bub, I don't like him."

"Okay. Mind if we tape record this for the public good?"

Watergate lives. The Republican National Committee still has soiled hands. Note to the Carter campaign: watch your file cabinets.

Bingham oils a gift to Missouri

As so often happens, the successful drive to acquire 112 drawings of George Caleb Bingham for the people of Missouri has already begun to have a snowball effect. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stephens, formerly of Kansas City but who presently live in Scottsdale, Ariz., were impressed by that remarkable achievement.

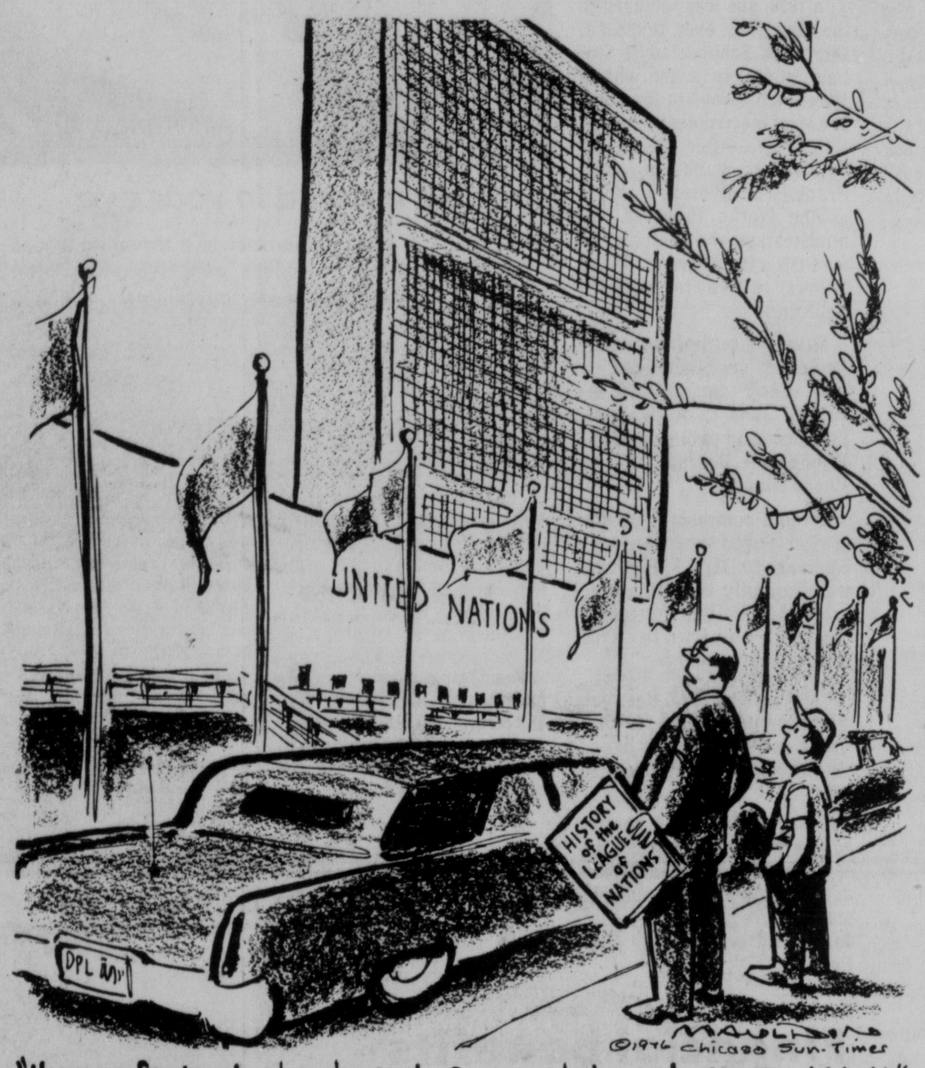

They were also aware of the work of Mrs. Carolyn Bond, the incumbent first lady, to refurbish the Governor's Mansion and return it to its original Victorian splendor. Those two efforts have now prompted Mr. and Mrs. Stephens to offer three oil paintings and two lithographs from their fine Bingham collection to enhance the interior of the stately old home in Jefferson City.

The terms of the gift have yet to be worked out. But it would be difficult to imagine anything more appropriate on the walls of a restored Governor's Mansion than the works of Bingham, who was an artist and a Missouri political leader at the time the house was built.

Bingham is generally recognized as one of America's most celebrated artists of the 19th century. His works are found in many of the greatest galleries and private collections in the land. Mr. and Mrs. Stephens believe that a few Binghams belong in the governor's home as well. It is a point well taken.

For many years Stephens was a prominent Kansas City businessman and civic leader. Although the couple has departed for a warmer and drier climate, it is refreshing to know that they still have close ties with Missouri. The snowball effect is working, as one successful effort stimulates further developments.

It can only be hoped that Carolyn Bond's progress at the mansion, the acquisition of the Bingham drawings and now the generous offer of Mr. and Mrs. Stephens will stimulate many others to follow the lead set by those fine examples. (Kansas City Times)

Delegate stealing by Reagan possible

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The epic struggle for the Republican presidential nomination is so close that Ronald Reagan's aides may resort to stealing delegates away from President Ford.

Some delegates are bound by law to support the President at least on the first ballot. Their votes belong to Ford, but their hearts belong to Reagan.

In secret strategy sessions, Reagan aides have toyed with the idea of asking these delegates to abstain as long as their state laws require them to honor the primary verdicts. This would prevent the President from ringing up an early-ballot victory. Then, in subsequent ballots, they could legally switch to Reagan.

For example, Ford won 25 delegates in North Carolina and 19 in Kentucky. In both states, they are obliged to vote for Ford only on the first ballot. The President's five Nevada delegates must vote for him on the first two ballots.

The Reagan strategists believe they could pirate several Ford delegates from these three states. If the delegates would sit out the first ballot or two, Reagan could wind up with their votes.

We discussed this plot with the President's political aides, who seemed concerned that it might succeed. They conceded that most of the Kentucky, Nevada and North Carolina delegates, who are legally committed to Ford are really "Reagan men."

They might hold out on Ford and cast their ballots later for Reagan, the presidential aides acknowledged. The plot is an "immoral attempt to disenfranchise the voters," declared one Ford official.

To counter the move, the President's forces may ask the Republican National Committee to adopt a convention resolution compelling each state delegation to honor the primary results. The committee, since it is stacked with friends of Ford, might be able to block the Reagan strategy.

Sources inside the Reagan camp, meanwhile, acknowledged that the delegate-stealing scheme hasn't been abandoned.

OVER-THE-COUNTER POT: In the paneled board rooms of some large corporations, the executives are casting covetous eyes on the multibillion-dollar marijuana market.

The secret estimates indicate marijuana users are now smoking $4 billion worth of pot per year. If marijuana were legalized, the market could soar to $10 billion annually.

This is enough pot to tempt the biggest of businesses. In anticipation of the day pot will be made legal, some alcohol and tobacco companies already are making production plans.

Government-sponsored tests at the University of Mississippi have produced an experimental marijuana five or six time stronger than the pot now sold on the streets. Tobacco companies, therefore, have set aside choice Southern land for future marijuana harvests, competent sources report.

Some firms have even registered trademarks on brand names, lifted straight from marijuana street lingo. Since trademarks cannot be issued for illegal products, the companies are using them temporarily on other obscure tobacco items.

Once marijuana is legalized, the firms can switch the trademarks, say, from cigars to pot.

The corporate executives are closely watching the status of legislation that would make marijuana legal to market. One corporate representative made a quiet trip to Washington recently to consult with experts on the law. He wanted to know what could be done to speed the legislation along.

Eight states have already decriminalized marijuana use; another 27 are considering similar legislation. There are also bills before the Senate and House which would decriminalize pot possession on the federal level. They will probably be taken up, according to our sources, after the presidential election.

Meanwhile, the marijuana question may become an issue in the election. Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter has already taken a stand in favor of decriminalization.

President Ford has stated his opposition to the idea but has indicated privately he has an open mind on the subject. Ronald Reagan is staunchly against decriminalization. If he gets the GOP nomination, he reportedly plans to attack Carter on the issue.

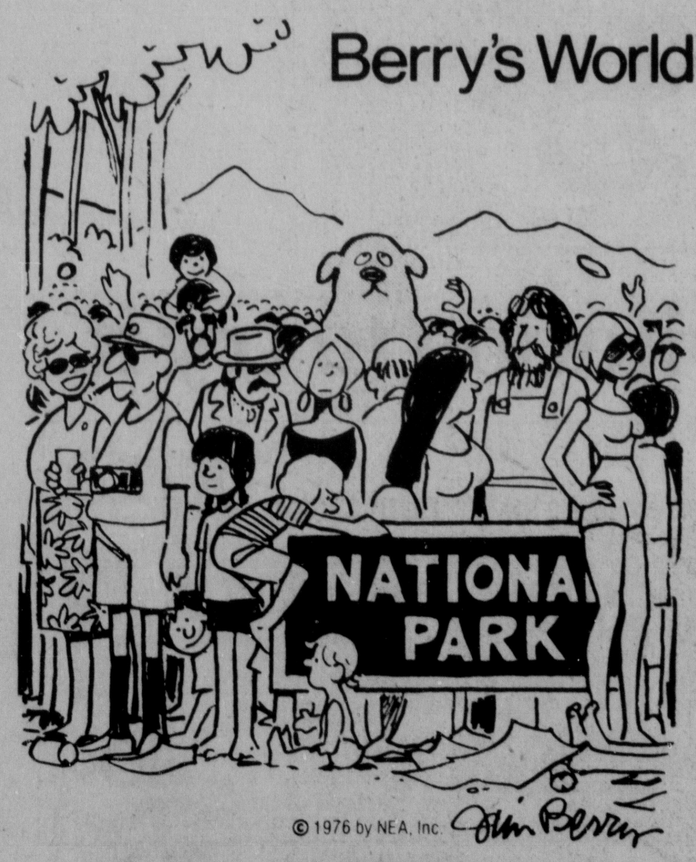

Footnote: The moving force behind the decriminalization effort, the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, is opposed to any corporate takeover of the marijuana market. Instead, the group advocates using tax revenues generated from marijuana sales for social purposes.

RADAR RESULTS: An unusual veterans' meeting was held recently in Framingham, Mass. Military men and civilians partially blinded by radar microwaves gathered from around the country.

The victims were led by Joseph Towne, known as the "Ralph Nader of microwaves," who came from California. The microwave visitors were seeking ways to expand favorable decisions by the Labor Dept. and Veterans Administration, which grant disability payments to those with microwave cataract"

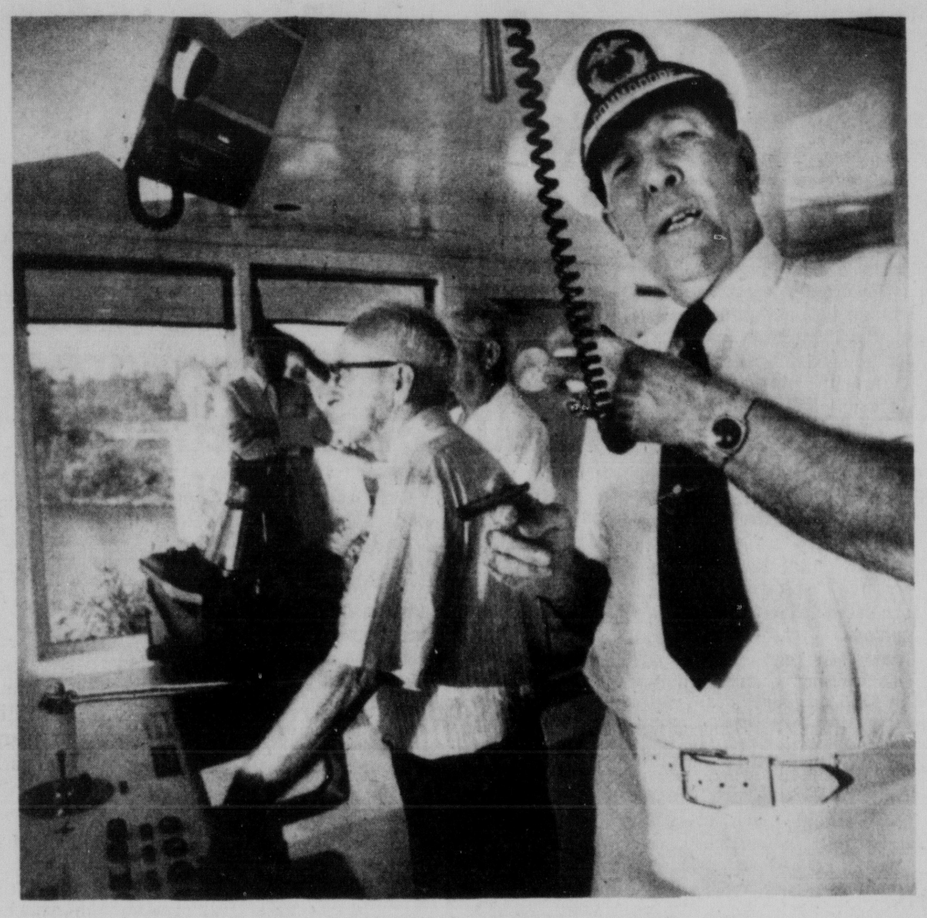

The problem: Cataracts from microwaves often don't develop until a decade or more after radar men and technicians leave their jobs.

Networks emphasizing comedies

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Miniseries based on hit novels may be the rage in TV now. But consider the situation comedy. The 1974 season began with 15 of them. Next fall, 26 are scheduled.

And the networks now even have vice presidents specializing in laughter's future, all working to develop new comedy ideas for TV.

Andy Siegel of CBS is one of them. He estimates he gets 75 comedy ideas offered him each week for consideration. All that considering about comedy can make a guy pretty grim, can't it?

"Well, no," he grinned. "There is pressure, but it's a tremendous amount of fun. I'm lucky ... this is an area where the whole idea is to find a special kind of lunacy that'll appeal to a lot of people."

CBS, the network most emphasizing situaton comedy in recent years, had eight sitcoms on the air in the fall of 1974. It had 12 on last fall and when September comes it'll be airing 14 of the rascals.

The sitcom growth indicates a wide appeal, of course.

But television's sanitized "family viewing" hour, pushed by CBS and adopted by all three networks last fall to counter gripes about violence or plots involving sex on TV early at night, raises a question.

Does Siegel look for two kinds of situation comedy—one strictly for "family viewing" time, the other with bolder, more adult themes for after the family hour, when kids theoretically are abed?

"No," said the 34-year-old executive. "I screen comedies on the basis of what I think has the best chance to get on the schedule."

The family viewing hour starts at 8 p.m. on the East and West coasts, an hour earlier in other areas.

Because of said hour, Siegel said, many would-be laugh merchants with a situation comedy idea tend "to come in and say, 'This a post-nine o'clock show.'

"A lot of people do that, say, 'We're doing a mature comedy.' I think that writers and producers sometimes have the wrong idea. They think you do bubblegum before nine and chewing tobacco after nine.

"Not so. I think the criteria is: Is it a good comedy, are there good characters, will they make people laugh?"

Still, when last season and the family hour began, only four of CBS' 12 situation comedies aired after the family hour finale.

Morey Amsterdam plots his return to television

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Comedian Morey Amsterdam wrote jokes for Will Rogers at the age of 15 and is busy now, at age 61, plotting a return to television with actress Rose Marie.

"It'll be a continuation of the Dick Van Dyke Show but this one might take place in an ad agency," he said in a recent interview.

Amsterdam and Rose Marie, whom he has known since she was 14, became familiar to millions of Americans as Buddy and Sally, a pair of comedy writers on the "The Allen Brady Show," a television series within a television series, "The Dick Van Dyke Show".

Amsterdam says his new TV series is still in the planning stages, just one of many kettles on his stove.

This fall his "cook book for drunks" titled "Betty Cooker's Crock Book" will be published.

"I did this as a joke," he said. "Whenever I was in Europe I noticed that 90 per cent of the meals were made with some kind of booze in them so I got the idea and started collecting the different recipes. And you know what's funny, I don't even drink."

About 150 "drunk jokes" will be interspersed between the recipes.

Also to be published this fall will be Amsterdam's "Celebrity Diet Book", a collection of the favorite diets of top celebrities.

"I'd just finished my other book and I was sitting in my publisher's office and he said, 'Well, what do you have for us now?' Well, I said, 'What's a sure-fire book?' And he said 'Anything with the word diet in it,'" Amsterdam explained.

"Well, I thought, celebrities are always watching their weight. You've got to remember, on television you put on 20 pounds immediately. It's something about the medium."

So Amsterdam collected the diets of 125 celebrities, many of them friends, and packaged them for publication.

In addition to the publishing projects, Amsterdam is the mastermind behind two other television series. One — "Can You Top This," already syndicated nationally — is based on the old radio show that featured top comics telling jokes. The other project is an animated version of the Marx Brothers antics.

Also in the works is an autobiography entitled "I Remember Me" which Amsterdam hopes to have completed within two years.

Morey said it will trace his career from its start at 14, when he had his first taste of vaudeville. His older brother was a pianist on the vaudeville circuit. When a comic in the troupe fell ill, he asked Morey to fill in. Morey obliged.

"At 15 I was writing for Will Rogers," Morey continued proudly. "Later on, throughout the years, I wrote for all the great American comics — Bob Taylor, Milton Berle, Danny Thomas, Bob Hope and Red Skelton."

Amsterdam was a natural for his role in the popular TV series. Producer Carl Reiner was after a real gag writer to play a gag writer.

"They were looking for people who really played the parts in real life," Morey said.

Milan elects police judge

MILAN, Mo. (AP) — Darrell Witmer was elected police judge Tuesday to replace Coleman Smith, who resigned after becoming involved in a controversy by refusing to fine traffic violators.

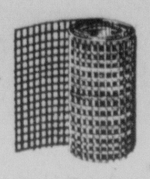

Witmer captured 154 votes to defeat two opponents.

Smith had charged that Milan police were overzealous in enforcing the law and did not always enforce the law equally among the town's 1,794 residents.

Baltimore Orioles' Mark Belanger sweeps his glove back in an attempt to tag out Kansas City's George Brett as Brett barrel rolls over second base in the first inning of Tuesday night's game in Kansas City. Belanger thought he had tagged Brett as part of a double play attempt, but the umpire ruled differently. The Orioles blasted Kansas City 10-3.

Grich swings hot bat

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bobby Grich has learned to stop and smell the roses.

The Baltimore infielder, whose season was threatened in April by a series of physical setbacks, enjoyed his finest game of the year Tuesday night, but talked about the little things.

"When you've been sick and come back," he said, "you really appreciate your health."

Grich belted a home run and a triple to help boost the Orioles past the Kansas City Royals, 10-3, driving in five runs and playing his customarily impeccable second base.

"I had all kinds of things hit me at the first of the year," he said. "About the second week I pulled something in my shoulder, and pretty soon after that I got a virus infection in the intestines and lost about 15 pounds. Then I got tonsilitus, and finally I had to stay home a week.

"I finally got well about the middle of May. When you've been sick and come back, you really appreciate your health, and you enjoy the little things in life a lot more, like eating a steak."

The Orioles, victors in eight of their last 10 games, feasted on Royal pitching for 12 hits, including Grich's home run, a mammoth blast by Reggie Jackson and two medium-distance shots off the bat of Lee May.

Grich's big night at the plate boosted his RBI count to 30 and the smooth-fielding veteran appears en route to another solid season. Some Oriole observers had predicted that his contract holdout — he and several teammates are playing out their option — might hinder his performance.

"That hasn't influenced my play at all," he said. "I'm just trying to have the best possible year. It's not hard to block those things out of your mind."

Righthander Wayne Garland, chief benefactor of the Orioles' power-packed attack, gave up seven hits and improved his record to 12-1, the best winning percentage in the American League.

"I guess we were kinda due for one of those," sighed Royals Manager Whitey Herzog, who admitted that loser Doug Bird, 9-3, "didn't throw well. He'd throw one good pitch and two or three bad ones."

Reynolds leads charge in Missouri amateur

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Overcoming a triple-bogey six on the second hole, Cathy Reynolds of Springfield, shot one-over-par for 13 holes Tuesday to lead championship flight players in the 38th annual Missouri Women's Amateur golf tournament and defeat Lou Moreau of Jefferson City 6-and-5.

Reynolds fought back to even par with three birdies on the front nine.

Tournament medalist Diane Daugherty of Centralia defeated Marcella Rose, a two-time champion from St. Louis, 3-and-2.

Daugherty shot a two-overpar 38 on the front nine to go 2up and after losing No. 11 closed the match by winning holes 15 and 16.

Karen MacGee, a six-time Missouri amateur champion from Kansas City, defeated Karen Cooper, also of Kansas City, 4-and-2. MacGee was 4-up after six holes before Cooper closed to two down with a par on 12. But MacGee wrapped up the match with birdie-par on the next two holes.

St. Louis' Barbara Berkmeyer, winner of the past two tournaments and four in all, defeated Marge Kolbrener of St. Louis 2-and-1.

Gail Dalton of St. Louis, the 1966 champion, got past 1967 titlist Peggy Ludlow of Kansas City 3-and-2.

The tournament continues today with the second of four 18-hole match play rounds leading to Saturday's finals.

Big Eight football ticket demand heavy

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Never mind the Olympic Games in Montreal or the pennant races in the various American and National League cities. So what if ticket prices are going up.

Here in Mid-America, where college football reigns supreme, pigskin fever still is epidemic. And while it's a bit early to say for certain, Big Eight Conference gridiron fans appear to be making another record dash toward the turnstiles.

Last year, in 47 home games, Big Eight teams drew more than 2½ million individuals, an average of more than 50,000 a game. This year's totals could go higher, even though five schools have increased their price of season tickets.

Two schools which have not raised prices have a good excuse: they can't go any higher. Oklahoma and Nebraska always sell out anyway and have huge waiting lists to get season tickets.

Don Bryant, sports information director at Nebraska, said there are always "thousands more who request season tickets than we can accomodate."

Ashton placed on waiver list

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Four-year veteran Josh Ashton, a running back, has been placed on the National Football League's waiver list by the St. Louis Cardinals after failing to pass his physical examination.

Ashton, 26, was acquired by the Cards last fall as a free agent after spending one season in the Canadian Football League and three with the New England Patriots.

A 6-foot-1 product of Tulsa, Ashton gained 44 yards for St. Louis on 10 carries.

Little League tourney opens here Thursday

A two-day, four-team invitational Little League Tournament will be held Thursday and Friday in Liberty Park.

The two Sedalia Little League All-Star teams, the American and National, will play host to Clinton and LaCoMo in the two-day affair.

The opening game Thursday at 6:30 p.m. pits the Sedalia National League All-Stars against Clinton. The 8:30 p.m. game is between the American League All-Stars and LaCoMo.

The two winners from Thursday night's contests will advance to Friday's 8:30 p.m. championship game. The first-round losers will meet for third place at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

The tournament will be a tune-up for next week's Little League Tournament in Higginsville, where Orrick and Carroll County will join the other four teams in the playoffs.

First-round pairings in Higginsville find the Sedalia American League All-Stars going against Carroll County Monday at 6 p.m. At 8 p.m. Monday, LaCoMo and the Sedalia National League All-Stars meet in first-round action.

Orrick and Clinton drew first-round byes and advanced directly into the semifinals. Orrick will face the winner of the Carroll County-Sedalia American game at 8 p.m. Tuesday. In the lower bracket, Clinton faces the winner of the LaCoMo-Sedalia National game at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The remaining two teams clash for the district championship at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The following night, July 29, the District 1 winner goes against the District 2 winner at 7:30 p.m. in Carrollton.

Michael Prevost is not surprised

MONTREAL (AP) — Canada lost three first-round matches in Olympic boxing Tuesday but it didn't surprise countryman Michael Prevost, a 23-year-old Montrealer who won a silver medal in the 1975 Pan American games in the light-middleweight division.

"Personally, I expected things like that," said the outspoken Prevost. "They weren't thinking positively and the winning effect wasn't on them."

U.S. swimmers keep up gold assault

MONTREAL (AP) — America's matchless male swimmers, chief harvesters of a medal crop that has put the United States on top in the XXI Olympic Games, must yield center stage again tonight.

Nadia will be back.

The Yankee swimmers, unbeaten and perhaps unbeatable, will be seeking their sixth and seventh gold medals in as many events. They're heavily favored in the 800-meter freestyle relay. And they had three of the four best times in qualifying for the 100 butterfly.

A world record, becoming something of a routine occurance, in the relay is a distinct possibility. But the worldwide television audience of a billion people may have to wait for the reruns to see it.

Nadia will be back.

And when tiny Nadia Comaneci appears, the rest of the Olympics all but halt, waiting and watching with the happy anticipation of another perfect performance from the pony-tailed Romanian schoolgirl who has captured the imagination of the world.

The 4-foot-11, 88-pound package of pert perfection, holder of the only three perfect 10 scores ever awarded in the Olympics, goes against the Russians in the finals of the women's all-around individual gymnastics.

Five gold medals will be awarded: uneven parallel bars, balance beam, floor exercise, vault and all-around. Nadia's chief opposition will be the Russians — Ludmila Tourischeva, who leads in floor exercise and trails Nadia by only four-tenths of a point in the over-all; Nellie Kim, who leads in the vault, and Olga Korbut, the darling of the 1972 Games.

It very well could be the highlight of the entire Olympics.

The highlight so far has been the complete domination of their sport by the American men and the East German women swimmers. Both are unbeaten.

And the gold medals acquired by John Hencken, Santa Barbera, Calif., in the 100 breaststroke and Brian Goodell, Mission Viejo, Calif., in the 1,500 freestyle — both in world record time — boosted the United States into the medal lead with seven gold, six silver and three bronze after three days of competition.

East Germany had a medal count of 6-4-4. Russia stood at 4-2-1. Japan, West Germany and Bulgaria each have one gold.

Jennifer Chandler, 17, Lincoln, Ala., had to overcome some biased marks from East German judge Heinz Gold — who heavily favored Christa Kohler of his country — to win the women's three-meter springboard.

"I didn't really notice it," she said, then added: "I don't think he meant to do that. Sometimes politics gets in whether you want it to or not."

But the bias was obvious. The crowd booed it. Toward the latter stages of the competition even the other judges peered angrily at the East German. He gave her the lowest point total of the seven judges on seven of her 10 dives. And he gave the East German girl the highest or next to highest mark on all 10.

Miss Chandler won with 506.19 points to 469.41 for Miss Kohler. Cynthia McIngvale of Dallas won the bronze with 466.83.

Don Haldeman, a 29-year-old tool and die maker from Souderton, Pa., gave the Americans another gold, scoring 190 of 200 in skeet shooting. He was followed by Armando Silva Marques of Portugal and Ubaldeso Baldi of Italy.

Goodell, 17, was timed in 15 minutes, 2.40 seconds for the punishing 1,500 freestyle, more than four seconds faster than his old world mark and an astonishing 52 seconds faster than the winning time in the 1972 Olympics. Bobby Hackett, another teenager from Yonkers, N.Y., took the silver in 15:03.91 and Steve Holland of Australia was third.

Hencken's 1:03.11 in the breaststroke represented his third world record in two days. David Wilkie of Great Britain was second in 1:03.43 and Arvidas Iuozaytis of Russia third in 1:04.23.

The U.S. forces suffered two major disappointments, survived a scare and got a surprise lift from a wrestler, Pete Lee, a 343-pound heavyweight on the Greco-Roman team. Lee, from Muncie, Ind., pinned 1972 silver medalist Alexandr Tomov of Bulgaria in the opening round of competition in what American coach Vaughn Hitchcock called "the upset of the Olympics, believe me."

One disappointment came from the eight-oared shell, which finished third in the repechage heat and thus was eliminated — for the first time in history — from the finals.

"There's a time in every race," said coxswain David Weinberg of New York, "when you have to decide whether you want to win badly enough. We let it slip away. There's no excuse. We just didn't have it."

Shirley Babashoff, Fountain Valley, Calif., declined to talk with reporters after she had failed to break the East German's hold on women's swimming. Petra Thumer won in world record time of 4:09.89. Miss Babashoff also broke the old record at 4:10.46. Shanon Smith of Canada was third.

The scare, and it was a major one, was survived by the American basketball team, beaten only once in Olympic history. The Americans trailed by seven points to a longshot Puerto Rican team, powered by New York playground graduates, before pulling out a 95-94 victory on two free throws by Phil Ford.

"I never had a doubt about it," said Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, who scored two critical baskets late in the game. "We like to think our best games are yet to come."

They may have to have a better game tonight against a big, tough Yugoslavia team.

Other medals today, in addition to the swimming and gymnastics, include three-position small bore rifle, lightweight weightlifting and foil fencing.

Japan won its fifth consecutive gold in men's team gymnastics Tuesday night, with Russia second and East Germany a distant third. In the only other medal event, Nikolai Kolesnikov of Russia took the gold in featherweight weightlifting with a combined hoist of 627 pounds. Georgi Todorov of Bulgaria, the 1974 world champion, was second with 616 pounds and Kazuma Hirai of Japan took the bronze with 605.

Boxer Stevenson: no money envy

MONTREAL (AP) — Fidel Castro has taught his heavyweight boxing champion well.

Big Teofilo Stevenson, Cuba's defending gold medalist in the Olympic Games, insists he holds no envy for Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier and George Foreman with their mansions, Rolls-Royces and multimilliondollar gates.

"With so many people in the world starving, it is a shame for a man to get $5 million for a fight," he said.

"I have no stomach for it."

At age 24, an imposing physical specimen at 6-feet-5¼ and around 220 pounds, he already has had more fights than most veteran professionals and, if he were not a citizen of Communist Cuba, many observers predict he would be pushing Ali for the world crown.

That is conjecture — disputed as much as it is proclaimed — and a mystery that probably will never be solved.

"I am an amateur," Stevenson said with as much emphasis as he could muster in his Spanish tongue. "It is no need to talk about what I might do against Ali, Frazier or Foreman.

"I will never fight them. I will always be an amateur. I am happy as I am."

As heavyweight champion, Stevenson is one of the leading personalities in the Olympic Village. Yet he has been one of the most elusive. He disdains publicity. He guards his privacy.

He strode into the Village cafeteria Tuesday night with a half-dozen fellow Cuban athletes and sought a secluded corner for a heavily-seasoned Spanish meal.

Athletes in the red sweat suits of the island off Florida flock around him, laugh at his jokes, sit when he sits, move when he moves.

He definitely is chairman of the board.

He is a handsome, striking man with facial features much like those of Muhammad Ali. His skin is the color of coffee with a generous portion of cream. His face, like that of Ali, is virtually unmarked.

Unlike Ali, Stevenson is not loud and bombastic and seems completely bereft of braggadocio.

Stevenson regards Duane Bobick, now a promising, unbeaten U.S. pro, as the best fighter he ever faced. He was 19 when he lost to Bobick in the Pan Am Games at Cali, Colombia, in 1971 but he came back to crush the American in Munich four years ago.

Olympics on TV

MONTREAL (AP) — Two Olympic basketball powers — the United States and Yugoslavia — will clash tonight as ABC-TV's coverage of the Summer Games continue.

Both teams have been tabbed as possible medal winners.

Also tonight, Romania's Nadia Comaneci and Olga Korbut of the Soviet Union will compete for the individual gymnastics gold medals. Miss Korbut, now 21 years old, became the darling of the 1972 Games in Munich, while the 14-year-old Romanian scored unprecedented perfect 10s in three phases of the team gymnastics competition.

ABC's coverage of the Games will run from 7:30 to 11 p.m., EDT, plus a 15-minute wrapup at 11:30 p.m.

Events that will be televised won't be known until shortly before the broadcast because much of the network's coverage is live. However, the U.S.-Yugoslavia men's basketball game is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m.

Top swimming finals scheduled today include the 100-meter butterfly where Joe Bottom of Santa Clara, Calif., will battle East Germany's Roger Pyttel for a gold medal, the men's 800-meter freestyle relay and women's 100-meter backstroke and 200-meter breaststroke.

Olympic binge in Canada

MONTREAL (AP) — They're in for a billion dollar hangover when the party's over. That's how much more the Olympic Games are going to cost Canadians than expected.

And many are saying "never again."

But for the next two weeks anyway, from the Arctic circle to the Great Lakes, and in the cities and prairies in between, Canadians seem to have put aside their quarreling about the controversial preparations and burgeoning costs of the Games, and have embarked upon a nationwide Olympic binge.

"From the moment they lit the Olympic flame I was hooked," said one wide-eyed French-Canadian secretary in the Games city of Montreal. An Associated Press telephone check indicated her excitement was the prevailing feeling throughout the world's second-largest country in area.

In the tiny Eskimo settlement of Tuktoyaktuk at the edge of the Arctic Sea, Dave Anderson, the proprietor of the Igloo Inn, said half of the community was out catching white food whales in the bay. "The other half are crammed in my restaurant looking at the television games. None of us here had ever seen some of the sports like gymnastics before. Now we all love them."

Truck drivers crammed the favorite bar of a newspaperman in Winnipeg, capital of the prairie province of Manitoba, chatting apparently knowledgeably about the Russian fencing star who cheated. "I'm really amazed. These guys usually think anything outside ice hockey is for girls," the editor said.

Informants in the Atlantic and Maritime provinces in the East, and British Columbia in the far West, reported similar fascination with the Games. Newspapers are splashing the Olympic story daily on front pages and have increased their sales. The Games also are dominating radio.

Team handball obscure sport

MONTREAL (AP) — There's Rico and Harry the Wizard, the twins Randy and Robbie, Ezra the Israeli, Sparky and Dennis. Under normal circumstances the closest they'd ever get to Olympic rings would be the water marks from their beer glasses on the neighborhood bar.

They're here, though, assembled with a dozen phone calls in about the same time it takes to get guys together for a pinochle game. And dressed in the U.S. team's red sweats, bunking down the hall from Scott May and a flight up from Frank Shorter, they're living out the fantasy of millions of schoolyard hackers. They're members of the U.S. Olympic Team.

The reason is they play the closet sport of the Games, team handball, an enterprise so anonymous in the United States that Manager Dennis Berkholtz says, "The real truth is that if you locked our rooms up there wouldn't be another person in 220 million who knows anything about it. When I heard they were going to put it on television I thought that's great, but nobody but me can explain it."

The Americans played Romania, the world champions, and didn't look too embarrassed in losing 32-19, taking their second straight loss here. The sport turned out more or less to be soccer with a dispensation so that everyone could use his hands.

The obscurity level of team handball is such that when distance runner Frank Shorter saw Harry Winkler, an old friend he had lost touch with, in the Village, Shorter asked: "Harry, what in hell are you doing here?"

Harry explained, and Shorter, an intelligent man, looked vague. "Look," said Winkler, "there are about 500 of us in the States. You're more likely to run into somebody with leprosy in Ohio than a team handball player."

Berkholtz said one of the problems in developing the sport, which has real popularity in Scandinavia, Germany and Eastern Europe, is that people confuse it with the YMCA game where you bang a little black ball off a wall with a couple of other overweight friends.

"I mean, who would want to go to watch one of those things and how could you cram 14 guys and goals into one of those courts," says Berkholtz. "But it's hard to change the name. We thought of superball or teamball, but that's been put aside. I admit we're a bit of a clique and that we have guys on the team who really haven't touched a ball competitively in a couple of years."

Air Force Academy pistol coach Bobby Tiner went to Switzerland this spring to compete in the annual military pistol and rifle championships.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's six-diamond bid was based on the principle that if you can count 11 sure winners, including first-round control of all suits, some divine Providence will give you a 12th trick.

When he looked at dummy his first glance indicated that Providence appeared to be looking some other way. There seemed to be no way to avoid two heart losers. Then South got an inspiration. He just might be able to ruff one heart in dummy.

He started operation heart ruff by leading a low heart. West won and led a second club. There was nothing better to do.

South ruffed, played one trump which was all he could afford, cashed three high spades in order to get rid of two of dummy's hearts, cashed his ace of hearts, ruffed his last heart with dummy's nine of trumps, drew trumps and had his slam.

He was lucky. Spades had to break 4-3 and trumps 3-2, but he had given the cards their chance.

ASK THE JACOBYS

We continue to get questions as to the origin of the name "Bridge"

In the game of whist there was no bidding. In the original game that did allow the bidding the dealer either made trump by saying, "I make it spades, hearts, etc.", or "I'll bridge it" in which case his partner had to make trump. The opponents had no right to bid in that first form of the new game.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Ann Landers

Engage maid to thwart thief

Dear Ann Landers: Some time ago I went to my daughter's house for dinner. She also invited her in-laws who brought their 15-year-old son. We had a pleasant evening but when I got home, I discovered $70 was missing from my wallet.

I phoned my daughter to tell her of the incident. I was certain the young boy had taken the money and wanted to warn her. She couldn't believe it and insisted I must have lost the $70 elsewhere.

Last evening, the in-laws were guests in my home. Again they brought the boy. This morning I left for the store, thinking I had $14 in my purse. When I attempted to pay for a purchase, I discovered only small change. My wallet was empty. Now I'm sure that the boy is a thief.

In two weeks I will be entertaining the entire family at my home. The in-laws will be there, including, of course, the boy. How can I safeguard the purses of my guests? (The women usually put them on the bed or on the dresser.) I don't want to embarrass anyone. — Up Against It

Dear Up: Engage a sitter (ostensibly as a maid) to help the ladies with their wraps. Ask her to remain full-time in the bedroom and keep an eye on the purses. (No details need be given.) That boy needs professional help — and soon. Let's hope someone has the courage to suggest it to his parents.

Dear Ann Landers: A nutty divorced woman moved next door. She has a son, six, and a daughter, seven. The son can't play with girls and the daughter can't play with boys, because their screwball mother says all the trouble in the world starts with sex and she doesn't want her children to "get involved."

What can we say to our youngsters when this woman orders them to stay away? — K.T.B.

Dear K.T.B.: Tell your children they shouldn't go where they aren't wanted. No other explanation is necessary. But let's hope those unfortunate neighbor kids get enough wholesome exposure at school to offset the crippling effects of their sick mother.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday my wife announced right after dinner, "I saved you $105 today." I was very eager to learn how she did it because this woman has always been a big spender. This is what she said:

"As you know, Harry, I always watch the paper for sales. Well, today I was really lucky. I bought three dresses at half price. They were originally marked $75. Can you imagine THREE $75 dresses for $105?"

I really got sore. The woman has a closet full of dresses that she bought at sales and she's never put them on her back. They don't fit right, they are too short or too long, or she is "waiting for the style to come back."

We are in debt up to our necks because my wife can't resist a bargain. I talked to our minister last year and he said, "Close all the charge accounts — she's a charge-a-holic." Tell me what to do. — Poorhouse Here I Come

Dear Poorhouse: Take the clergyman's advice — NOW. You'd be doing your wife a favor. Some people need protection from themselves and compulsive buyers are at the top of the list.

Agriculture Department publishes new yearbook

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department Wednesday published a new yearbook, "The Face of Rural America," crammed with 335 photographs and minimal text.

The 288-page 1976 yearbook was predicted by USDA officials to become a collector's item a century from now when the nation observers its Tricentennial.

But the chances of it becoming scarce very soon are small. The department, as it does with all yearbooks, ordered 233,450 copies for free distribution to members of Congress and another 30,000 for its own use.

Each U.S. senator gets 550 books annually and a Representative 400. Many make the yearbooks available to constituents upon request and pass them along to libraries, schools and other public institutions.

For others who want USDA's Bicentennial yearbook and can't get it from their senator or congressman, the cost is $7.30 a copy and can be ordered from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said in the book's introduction that it will "help you understand better right now what modern farming is really like" and noted how farmers have increased their production efficiency over the years.

"You will discover, as you look at this panorama of modern farming, that today's agriculture, while still essentially a family business, is predominantley big and commercial — and human," Butz said.

More than 50 photographers, many of them private citizens and from land-grant universities, contributed to the yearbook. Editor Jack Hayes said all states are represented in the book although some are not identified in picture captions.

Pictures include scenes of harvest, irrigation, rodeos, a bikini-clad girl feeding hogs, a boy with a 4-H rabbit and families at play and prayer.

Near Rolla, Mo., Harold and Faye Hutchinson are shown harvesting worms for sale to bait shops. And at Millerstown, Pa., people join to rebuild a dairy barn for Ronald Jane Nipple after it was destroyed by fire.

At ceremonies Wednesday, Butz and other officials were scheduled to meet with Mr. and Mr. Sam Heizer and their three children who live on a dairy farm near Middlebrook, Va. Their pictures are in the volume.

Drought stress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's corn crop "remained in good condition but showed increased drought stress" in some north central areas as it passed the mid-July mark, according to the Agriculture Department.

Last week, based on July 1 indications, the department forecast a record corn harvest this fall if fields got normal moisture through August. The July 1 indication was for a harvest of more than 6.55-billion bushels, up 14 per cent from the 1975 record of less than 5.8 billion.

The Department said Tuesday in a brief weekly review of crops and weather conditions that dry weather as of July 18 was causing "special concern" for corn in parts of the Midwest because it was near or into the critical silking and tasseling stages of development.

"In Iowa, rolling leaves on corn signaled heat stress," the report said. "Hot, dry conditions in that state retarded tasseling and silk emergence. Light rains brought some relief, but Iowa still needs more moisture."

The department will issue a new forecast of 1976 corn and other crop output on Aug. 12, based on surveys made on the first of the month.

Export program said geared to large firms

NEW YORK (AP) — In the view of Eugene Lang, who terms himself an "entrepreneurial idealist," this country's export program is a ripoff by big business, "a massive giveway" of taxpayer's money.

The aspect of the program that generates most of Lang's ire is the "DISC" portion, under which U.S. manufacturers can set up a domestic international sales corporation and, in effect, cut in half their taxes on profits of domestic manufactures sold abroad.

Said Lang in a letter to Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, "The prime beneficiaries would be exporting just as vigorously without the incentive." Most have assets of at least $100 million; they are by nature exporters.

In contrast, he continues, small manufacturers who represent the innovative spirit, find themselves with relatively few opportunities, or federal programs to assist them in selling abroad. They are the ones who need help, he maintains.

Lang, an expert in exporting the technology of small manufacturers, and himself the founder of an international manufacturing, consulting and licensing company with sales of $15 million a year, is beginning to hope again.

During the Richard M. Nixon administration, he said, "it was futile to try to promote small business. Secretary Dent (Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent) wasn't interested in what I was saying."

Now, with Congress considering changes in the DISC legislation, and with Richardson apparently more receptive to the small business story, Lang believes there is a chance to promote his proposals, which contain three essentials:

1. A small business presence at the top policy levels, similar to the President's Export Council, which is staffed almost exclusively by the chairmen or presidents of the nation's largest corporations.

2. Financial incentives for small business that will not deprive the country of existing tax revenues.

3. A mechanism that small business can use, such as a Small Business Export Trade Corp., to enable it to take advantage of the opportunities in world markets.

Lang believes that while big business exporters have the know-how, the organizational skills, the funds and the easily identifiable products, small-business men are faced with what they see as a hopeless task.

It is such as these who need the help, he argues. Moreover, he believes they deserve help because it is in small business that much of the innovation, the experimentation, the creativity is nurtured.

Big business, in his view, is much less innovative. He notes that the number of Japanese patents in the United States is growing three times faster than the number of U.S. patents in Japan.

Lang knows of what he speaks, since the licensing of American technology is part of the expertise of his company, REFAC Technology Development Corp. It has helped, for a share of the profits, numerous small companies establish contacts and distributors abroad.

Injunction seeks to stop price fixing

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A proposed injunction to prohibit two Columbia Cab companies from fixing prices for fares was filed by the attorney general's office Tuesday.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Kermit W. Almstedt said the order, which was filed in Boone County Circuit Court, would become effective in 60 days.

It prohibits the Columbia Cab Co. and the Checker Cab Co. of Columbia, Inc., from conspiring to fix prices in violation of state antitrust laws.

Almstedt said he discussed the situation with the two cab companies "after learning of the collusive activity" of the two firms, and they agreed to the order.

Once the order becomes effective, the companies will be subject to civil contempt fines of up to $20,000 for any future violations.

"Tails" were created as part of the clothing of the 1800s so that gentlemen could wear the clothes while riding horseback.
